STRIKEFORCE is published independently of any political organisation and is a forum for White Revolutionaries who wish to make no compromise whatsoever with the system that seeks to destroy our movement.

Strikeforce promotes racial pride and racial separation and stands opposed to race-mixing and racial hatred. It does not seek to incite violence against people of other races. Our mutual enemies are the faceless bureaucrats and their treacherous lackeys in the government who have created this unnatural hell we are being forced to endure.

Strikeforce will carry news and articles concerning our struggle with a small section on the White Power music scene. Articles by groups or individuals, letters, photos, artwork and press cuttings are welcomed for publication. We will support any direct action groups. We will also monitor Government/Special Branch/MI5 activities and keep you informed. Please send us anything you may consider of interest from around the world and if it is worth publishing we will be happy to do so.

EDITORIAL

WAKEY, WAKEY WHITE MAN!

It's time to sort your lives out. Stop running around playing your part in the government's "drama" playing your chosen role written for you by ZOG's very own scriptwriters. Stop churning out shitty magazines declaring race war, a war which is conveniently put off every time it's due to start. You know the score: "Oops, sorry, can't start the war this year lads, we're under surveillance" or "Er, the bombing campaign's off this year lads, we're gonna try something new - new meetings, new paper sales, you know, the time's not right yet".

Well the time's never going to be right White man. Face up to it, the situation is that you either wait until you grow old and fat, or you put yourself on the line. Yeah, you might die, you might go to jail, but Robert Matthews died, Rudolf Hess spent most of his life in Jail! Yet they did what they had to do!

Compare these great men with disgraced former leader (?) of C18, Charlie "Captain Standback" Sargent. After 3-4 years of big talk and even bigger promises, the active members of C18 put it to him in a small meeting that they'd had enough of the talking and that they were about to embark on a terrorist campaign of bombings and shootings. Do you know what Sargent's reply was? "You can't do that, it'll bring it on top for my T-shirt company." I kid you not, all this was said in front of witnesses. At the time we all thought he was just a gutless fucker, but as other events unfolded, and his role as a state agent became clear, it was then obvious all C18 had been, up to then, was a honeytrap/pressure valve and we'd all been used to play the role that ZOG had planned for us, namely pointless confrontations with reds and pointless infighting with other pro-White groups, all of which does nothing to damage their system. But the moment C18 stepped out of line, kicked out "their man" and started trying to blow people up, the system shit it. They sanctioned a murder, they ran around offering everyone money to become informers because, basically, for the first time in Britain they knew there was a group out there with the guts to put themselves on the line. Since Mosley's days, no group has ever carried out terrorist acts. C18 is the first group to turn to outright terrorist acts. If C18 can do it, there is no reason why others out there can't do the same thing. Whatever you do don't join any groups, if you decide to act, do it alone and if you involve others, keep it small. Learn from our past mistakes and trust NO ONE!

As for C18 "the die has been cast". We will NEVER SUBMIT!

The root of our problems is the Government and not the Blacks or muggy reds. Strikeback against the Government and its lackeys both inside and outside our movement. It is the Government who try to destroy us, imprison us, murder us. It is the Government that floods our nation with non-Whites. It is the Government who controls the media. It is the Government we must target!

CHARLIE 'SPECIAL BRANCH' SARGENT

All British cells were warned about this man around November 1996. All contacts have been severed with both Sargent brothers. For those of you on the fringes who are being bombarded by Sargent propaganda, we officially warn you for your own safety against having any contact with either Charlie Sargent or Steve Sargent. We have strong reason to believe they are state controlled and have been long before C18's formation.

At first we believed the problems caused by the brothers were accidental and caused by personality defects. However, it has become clear that we have been subjected to a classic counter intelligence program (Co-Intel-Pro) - the American FBI's counter insurgency operation against radical dissident movements and obviously being used by Special Branch today in our own movement in Britain.

Co-Intel-Pro works on the following lines using 4 methods along with others:
1/ Centrally co-ordinated disinformation - rumours that caused splits here and abroad.
2/ Character assassinations - Billy, Ken Mc, John Tyndall, Mark Atkinson, Martin Cross, David Lane, Hitchcock, Micky Lane, Simon, Will Browning and innumerable others.
3/ Agent provocateur actions - inciting cells to take action whilst keeping their own noses clean.
4/ Murder - Chris Castle, Feb. 10th 1997.
Methods 1-3 were undertaken big style by the Bullshit Brothers and they were successful in causing mayhem, first in the BM, then the BNP, then B+H and finally C18.

It seems clear with hindsight that C18 was originally formed as a 'honeytrap' to attract all hardliners from various groups and put them all together under a new name where they could be monitored. But after Sargent was expelled, 'Frankenstein's Monster' was out of control. Sargent now had no knowledge of cell activities or access to funds. Their whole operation was fucked and drastic action had to be taken. No doubt Charlie's neck was on the line too for allowing this to happen. Now stuck in Harlow, a laughing stock and powerless, something had to happen to try and restore Sargent's cred. and/or totally dishearten all of you fed up of all the arguing, dissent, etc. so that you dropped out.

Method 4 was then put into practice - murder! The murder of Catford Chris on February 10th 1997 was Sargent's final attempt to pull the situation around. Obviously he played 'agent provocateur' again using Martin 'Judas' Cross. It still remains a mystery what he has been told in order to stand with Sargent. They tried to kill 2 birds with one stone and stitch up one of the men responsible for outing Sargent in November '96, Wilf Browning. When this failed due to independent eyewitness accounts, they fabricated evidence against Wilf, getting him banged up for 10 days. Sargent, of course, was released without charge on Feb. 11th but has now been re-arrested after pressure from family members and comrades but most of all Wilf's solicitor's discovery of Special Branch involvement in the case! S.B. backed Sargent's lies saying they had 'intelligence' against Browning. Wilf's solicitor demanded for this intelligence to be shown so she could advise him what to do for the best and they suddenly decided to drop the charges, but not after he'd been banged up for 10 days.

Once again Sargent has failed in his last attempt to gain control and credibility for these reasons:-

1/ 'Catford Chris' was one of our own - not an enemy.

2/ Chris was stabbed in the back - backstabbers are the lowest of the low - hardly the criteria for 'a hardman nazi murderer' propaganda onslaught.

3/ Martin Cross was a most unpopular assassin due to Sargent's own previous character assassination of him.

Once again he has failed to finally split C18 by disheartening us all. We have become 'united', stronger than before, in hatred of Sargent and most of all, the whole movement is "United in Grief". Hail Chris!

And now? Who knows? How can he be of use to the state now? He can never get a foothold in a N.S. party again having already been through the BM, BNP, etc. He has no role to play. Will they throw him to the dogs now? We wait in hope for the coming trial. To you we say - look to the future. We have come through the storm and we are still intact. Ignore all Sargent's final propaganda material and watch your backs!!

FUCK ZOG! FUCK THE SARGENT BROTHERS! FUCK MARTIN 'JUDAS' CROSS! HAIL CHRIS CASTLE!!

TO SPECIAL BRANCH WE SAY - YOU FUCKED UP! FRANKENSTEIN'S MONSTER IS OUT OF CONTROL!! CHEERS FOR THE NAME - WE WILL KEEP IT. IT'LL BE A REMINDER TO YOU EVERY TIME YOU HEAR IT. HAVE BACK 'YOUR' FAT FUHRER. WE ARE LEADERLESS RESISTANCE

C18 - WHATEVER IT TAKES!!

OUTLOOK

ASIANS PUT 12 YEAR OLD IN COMA

Did you see the papers recently which reported the Asian gang attack on a 12 year old schoolboy, Daniel Moore? Perhaps the most shocking aspect of this case is that no longer is it shocking. Racist attacks such as this are taking place all the time on White people young and old! This innocent young lad was just another victim of this Government's insane forced integration policy.

Daniel Moore:

Beaten to a pulp and left in a coma.

Daniel was chased by a gang of 20 Asians who hit him with sticks, iron bars, bricks and bottles. While he was laying on the ground unconscious, the continued the assault by smashing his head in with a brick, putting him in a coma.

The police had to admit that this was a racist attack with one officer saying, "He was beaten to a pulp". They also said that Daniel had been chased earlier in the day by car loads of Asians. A local man stated, "Things are just getting out of hand. Every day some kid gets attacked".

How long before there is another Richard Everitt? Attacks such as this show that the system's multi-racial dream has become a reality - a nightmare. "The only answer is for them to stay in their areas and us in ours."

Footnote: A recent survey by West Yorks. Police showed that a third of racial attacks in West Yorkshire were committed by Asians and all their victims were White! Although the amount of Asians in W. Yorks. is large, it is nowhere near a third of the population. This means that Asians commit more racial attacks than Whites. When are we going to hear the bleeding heart liberals go on about that?

HEAD HITS OUT!

A Bradford headmaster has condemned "sinister racist messages" daubed on Belle Vue Boy's school walls. The graffiti included "...a Nazi swastika and a symbol of the race-hate group Combat 18". Bruce Berry has urged people to help the school catch those who were behind the offensive messages. Police are investigating the racist graffiti attack with Sergeant Roy Wensley of Bradford police saying, "This kind of incident will not be tolerated and we will be making enquiries to find out who is behind it." Obviously Bfd police don't have any serious crimes to investigate like drugs pushing, racial attacks on Whites, child prostitution, etc., etc, I could go on but who'd listen?

BIGGEST EVER SENTENCE FOR 'RACE HATE CRIMES'

Two more comrades have fallen foul of our wonderful race-act. Mark Atkinson and Rob Gray received the full glare of the media as they were dragged into yet another show trial at Southwark Crown Court.

The occupational Government's case was that Mark and Rob published and distributed the "Stormer" magazine which contained "hit lists" of reds with their addresses and phone numbers. It also contained articles that blatantly gave two fingers to their race-act. Atki pleaded guilty to the charges because he was caught bang to rights at it was a waste of time even attempting to fight it. Rob decided to fight the case as he had a slightly better chance, however the multi-racial jury took great delight in finding him guilty, much to the approval of the hyenas in the press box.

In court statements were read out from Frank Bruno's mother claiming she had received death threats over the phone, hence the uproar from the press as they all joined together to demand tougher sentences for such crimes. This led the Judge to remark when sentencing Atki that the maximum sentence of two years was not long enough and 'race-haters' should be given the same sentences as drugs dealers, etc. If you ask us this would be totally out of order unless of course the drugs dealer he was referring to was Charlie Sargent who got a mere 6 months for his second conviction for supplying heroin. Atki would have had a result if he had ended up with a sentence as short as this but he ended up with 21 months, almost 2 years and this was after his barrister had argued all morning against him being given consecutive sentences for the 2 offences he was charged with. This would have meant him getting 4 years. Are they taking the piss or what? After Atki's sentencing, the press carried on the frenzy with all sorts of horror stories about Bruno's mum, etc. Obviously they were doing this as part of their campaign to have tougher laws brought in and also to wind up the occupying forces to try and smash C18. Well, it hasn't worked. Atki and Rob have gone to jail (Rob got 18 months), holding their heads up high and both are looking forward to their release when they can continue the struggle again.

We salute Rob and Atki who both have families on the outside. Drop 'em a line and show 'em your support.

Nonces, Shitstirrers and Misfits

We don't want to waste too much time on the "oldest bedpisser in town" but we feel we must warn you about his latest venture. After his expulsion from C18, he started bombarding people abroad with yet more bullshit in the form of letters and statements. These, as you could imagine, were just smears and attacks on C18 and the people who exposed him and his cowardly brother as state operatives and conmen. Then Slippery Steve announced that he was forming a new movement (?) called the N.S.M. and appointed Dave Myatt as the frontman. We don't know much about Dave Myatt, except that he must be very naive. As you could imagine, only the weirdoes, cranks and Sargent's pen-pals would be attracted to his latest scheme as is the case in the rapidly diminishing handful of misfits he has around him. Someone from Germany recently showed me a letter Slippery Steve had written him. When I read it, I could have been mistaken into thinking it was written by a committed, heroic National Socialist, dedicated to his race and willing to die for the cause. In fact, it could have been a letter written by A. Hitler himself. I'm sorry, but the mind's picture that his letter painted of himself and his brother didn't quite seem recognisable when compared with the two sad little misfits who we all know.

It's easy to paint a picture of yourself as a great, honest hero on paper, but that's all it is - on paper. It is also easy for people who have never met the writer to believe what is written and take it at face value. NO-ONE knows the Sargents better than us so we suggest that if you are unfortunate enough to be sent their bullshit in the post, bin it and if Slippery Steve contacts you trying to solicit support from you, tell him to go fuck himself. All the NSM, or Nonces, Shitstirrers and Misfits as it is known in Britain, is going to be is another money-making scam for the Sargents, and if there is any opportunity for it to cause trouble for genuine revolutionaries, either by setting people up, spreading rumours or passing information, then it will. The Publications that the Nonces Shitstirrers and Misfits distribute are The Order, Racist Times and White Dragon. These are a load of childish crap, just the usual recycled right-wing garbage that we've all heard before, with loads of advert for 'stickers for sale', etc., etc.

Now Send Money to the Nonces, Shitstirrers and Misfits, eh Stevie Boy?

NSM - "NEW NAME, SAME OLD MISFITS"

"HAIL NONCES, SHITSTIRRERS AND MISFITS"

MAIL TARGET STEVE CARTRIGHT

Once again the Sunday Mail in Scotland has launched another smear campaign against Glasgow lad Steve Cartright. The article calls him a twisted nazi and accuses him of recruiting for the Klan - Naughty boy! Oh, and get this, he read Mein Kampf when he was 18! Tut tut - off with his head.

The article also goes on about the C18 bombing campaign. The paper then tries to mug Steve off by saying he pretended he had a bomb sent to him to "boost his credibility" with his few supporters. The police have openly dismissed any claim that he received a bomb. If that's the case why did the police tell him that he did have a bomb posted to him? We think it's about time Special Branch came clean and told us why they were going around the country backing up Steve Sargent's claims that C18 had launched a bombing campaign against fellow racists. Strikeforce contacted C18 and they stated that "...the only 'nazis' to be sent bombs were Brad and Pajen from Nordland. The rest were reds and race traitors. If anyone wants to believe Steve Sargent and Special Branch, that's up to them. We know who we were gonna blow up."

The Mail's article then goes back to Steve's trip to "Auschwitz" 4 years ago which really seems to have pissed them off. This, we believe is the real reason they keep harassing Steve - it's called sour grapes! He mugged Channel 4 off in that programme and they ain't gonna forget it. Still, one of his quotes made us laugh: "Racism's coming home" he proudly announces. Eat your heart out Mr Baddiel.

THE KLANSMAN

We reveal KKK's Scots recruiting agent

TWISTED Nazi Stephen Cartwright is today revealed as the man behind a Scots recruiting drive for the Ku Klux Klan.

Cartwright - who claims the holocaust was a hoax - uses his race-hate magazine Highlander to sign up bigoted recruits.

The 33-year-old hides his true identity behind a post office box number.

But the Mail can reveal that the ex-Territorial Army soldier is one of the men behind the sickening new campaign to boost Klan membership in Scotland.

Last week we revealed how the evil white-supremacist group was recruiting Scots youths.

Today we can expose Cartwright's links with the Klan for the first time.

The far-right fanatic, who first read Hitler's Mein Kampf at 13, uses his magazine to carry articles on and adverts for the newly-formed Scottish Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

The publication is full of sickening articles promoting racial hatred.

LINKS

Cartwright, who lives in Easterhouse, Glasgow, and once stood as a BNP candidate in the Clydesdale constituency, proudly announces "racism is coming home" - a reference to the Klan's Scottish links.

He claims that he is living under a constant threat from rival neo-Nazi groups.

They are said to be incensed he has taken over the lucrative skinhead music scene - depriving them of much-needed funds. And he recently claimed he'd been sent a suspect package by Danish Nazis in the Hitler-supporting group Combat 18.

Three Danish Nazis were jailed earlier this month for attempting to mount a letter bomb campaign in Britain.

One was addressed to swimmer-turned-TV presenter Sharron Davies, who is married to the black former athlete Derek Redmond.

Another was aimed at the Anti-Fascist Action organisation, and the third at a wing of the C18 group, because of internal disagreements.

But police have dismissed Cartwright's claims that he was also the target of a letter bomb sent by Danish Nazis.

They say no bombs were sent to his post office box at Gartcraig Road, Glasgow.

It is thought he was making up the bomb claims to boost his credibility with his few supporters.

Four years ago, Cartwright incensed TV viewers after being invited to Auschwitz for a Channel 4 documentary.

SNEERED

He sneered about the slaughter of millions of Jews by the Nazis, and claimed:

"I came back even more convinced it was a hoax.

"We took 10 or 15 minutes off for a cup of tea.

"Then we spent an hour looking at the swimming pool and things you would not normally get in a concentration camp."

Cartwright was not available for comment last night.

ZOG'S BULLSHIT

PENSIONER IN THE DOCK

Here we go again - another 'war crimes' trial', yet another elderly man the victim of the occupational government. This time it's 77 year old Andrei Sawoniuk who is alledged to have committed five murders after the German liberation of Belarus, a nation that formed part of the Soviet Union, a state not unknown for its own atrocities. Andrei, of East London, has been a hard working British Rail worker since he came to this country after WW2. He is to appear before Bow Street Magistrates charged under the 1991 War Crimes Act.

Fuck me, it was war for fucks sake, over 50 years ago. Who gives a fuck? The Government has put over £20 million into investigating these 'crimes' so far. Haven't they heard of our crumbling hospitals, schools and people needing real fucking jobs?

THE TYPEWRITER TERRORIST STRIKES AGAIN

I've just been handed the latest offering from the Nonces, Shitstirrers and Misfits in the form of their groundbreaking newsletter, 'The White Dragon'. I can see ZOG shaking as they read this no-holds-barred, uncompromising, fearless onslaught from Britain's second most feared typewriter terrorist, the first obviously being that fat, dribbling hunchback who found himself flat on his back like an upturned turtle in the showers in Chelmsford jail not too long ago as a few of the inmates discussed the pros and cons of him making statements against Will Browning. We don't want to shatter anyone's illusions of this shining example of Aryan manhood, but according to eyewitnesses "he squealed like a ginger pig" or was it a ginger gerbil? I don't know, I'm just glad I didn't have to see his Greek-God like physique rolling around the floor with no clothes on!

Anyway, back to Steve, the "oldest bedpisser in town" and that literary masterpiece of his. The front page opens up his barrage(?) against ZOG with a song - ooh, you're so evil Steve, I only wish I had one ounce of your courage! I can feel the sheer heroism as you sat alone in your seedy little bedsit, surrounded by empty beercans and your piss-stained duvet, the way you struck at the very heart of ZOG. Why didn't we think of writing a song about Princess Di? You've led the way Steve, you Aryan warrior you! Just wait until you and the three other weirdoes all sing it at the Nonces, Shitstirrers and Misfit's AGM. Bye bye ZOG, eh Stevie boy, no one will ever call you a sad little man again.

Well, after Slippery Steve's "Battle Anthem" we have the editorial. When you read this, you can just feel the greatness of this man, as he delivers it in his own inimitable style, yawn, yawn, filled with absolutely side-splitting humour and ending with a rousing battle cry as he asks you to Now Send Money to buy one of his other 'no-holds-barred' publications; "Action"(ha ha) another fascinating read. We turn over the page and it's filled with really gripping stuff, so gripping I fell asleep. Oh, wait, there; look at the article under the heading 'Court Cases'. Veteran Lady Jane Birdwood is mentioned next to the two poison dwarves. I'm sure she's well pleased. Wait, there's more of Steve's side-splitting humour, yeah, look, "Comrades Sargent and Cross have received a trial date for January next year with regard to the SELF DEFENCE incident in Harlow". Ho! Ho! Ho! that's a cracker Steve, self defence? I just don't know how you come up with 'em , yeah, lure a man to fatboy's house, stab him IN THE BACK, then make statements against Will Browning to get him lifed off, obviously self defence, eh? Poor little chubby cherub Charlie, and that lovable little Martin, poor things!

Well, onto the next page: I'm not gonna knock this, it's an interview with a POW who is obviously doing time for various actions. I just hope someone puts the bloke straight and he realises that the 'second most feared typewriter terrorist' is using him for a bit of cred. Next page, more riveting stuff, oh wait, there he gloats over Mark Atkinson getting banged up for two years, it's a shame his warrior instinct deserted him last time he saw Atki, still he's got another 8 months to pluck up a bit of courage then he can have a straightener with Atki, that is unless you have another daring song to type out, we wouldn't want to disrupt your war effort, o' Aryan warrior.

The next page is even more gripping with talk about moral standards. In this article he slags off Chingford Mick with a supposed picture of him, but I'm sorry to say Steve, it looks just like the "Burger King" himself. Yep, big bruv himself, and a man who can really lecture people on morals. I mean you've got some morals haven't you Steve? I mean, you've grassed on your comrades, sent out perverted porn through the post, oh yeah Steve, the type that was found in your seedy little bedroom in Chelmsford. Of course they were just a joke, eh Steve? You're a real role model Steve.

The next article offers sympathy to John Tyndall who was beaten up recently by red scum, the same John Tyndall the typewriter terrorist accused of nicking money, buying a yacht, being a queer, wife-beater, etc. Desperate for friends are we Steve? I'm sure Mr Tyndall can see through your phoney feelers.

The next page ain't even worth mentioning, then we come to the letters page. Hey, interesting, a letter written by the editor of the Order, Andy Saxon, to Albion Wolf, editor of White Dragon. Seeing as both these men are one and the same, Slippery Steve, we can only assume he likes writing letters to himself. Does he really think that we don't know this? He can't be that much of a plum, there must be at least one other person who can write a letter to him, surely?

The letter itself slags off Chris Hipkin and Steve tells himself in his letter to himself that he is such a honourable kind of guy, he never stole money, he hasn't worked for Special Branch, etc., etc., then he replies to himself and tries to have a pop at Chris again as well as Wolfpack, NS88 and ISD of making loads of money and never doing anything for the cause. Just a few minor details that seem to have slipped Steve's incredibly big brain: Marcel who allegedly runs NS88 has been convicted of possession of explosives after the death of a red in Denmark during a parcel bomb campaign a few years ago. He was also arrested in connection with the more recent bombing campaigns in Denmark and Sweden. He now faces various race charges as well as the German Government trying to drag him through their courts. As for ISD, two people allegedly linked to ISD are currently facing possible extradition to Denmark for alleged terrorist offences as well as both recently spending time in jail for various offences for our race. As for the money, those people that need to know where it is do know, but rest assured, Stevie boy, no more of it is gonna find it's way to yours, or your mug of a brother's, sticky little fingers. And if you're such a warrior, Steve, why don't you take some of the money your slimy brother nicked, go to Eastern Europe, procure some guns, explosives and detonators and drive across several borders with the gear in the boot, go to Scandinavia and launch a bombing campaign, then come back and talk to us. Somehow I think the love of the typewriter is too strong, eh Steve? Put the race war off for a few years eh Steve, you warrior you!

In the last bit of the letter, Steve writes to himself. He mentions statements being sent out by buffoons accusing him of being a grass. These statements appear to have hit a raw nerve, then he goes on to say the people who put out these statements are also testifying against the poor chubby cherub, Charlie. Well, Steve, Charlie should have thought about that when he was a prosecution witness against Will Browning. In Fat Boy's eagerness, along with Double-cross to stitch Will up, they dropped themselves in the shit with their ridiculous statements. As we've said before, "you live by the statement, you die by the statement". I bet they wish they had done what your fat, gutless brother always said in his mags you should say: NO COMMENT, so don't try the sympathy bit Steve, everyone sees him and Cross for what they are: gutless, treacherous, sneaky scumbags.

The last page is just full of more letters, obviously written by the Aryan warrior himself and yet again he wants you to Now Send Money for mags, stickers, etc., etc.

Verdict

Bullshit content - very high.
Entertainment value - I almost pissed myself laughing at this drivel.
Other comments - 1)Waste of trees. 2)Paper too hard to wipe your arse on. 3)Ideal reading for Nonces, Shitstirrers and Misfits. 4)Don't give up your day job Steve. 5)Keep going to the bachelor boys' club.

Hail Steve & Charlie!
The Aryan Supermen!

PS If you wanna slag people off Steve, come out of hiding and have a straightener you muppet

WHICH WAY NOW WHITE MAN?

Don't you people out there think that it's time that we had a proper look at where we're heading? The whole White resistance movement worldwide should decide what our goals are and if there is any hope of achieving them. If there is no hope as things stand now, then we should stop wasting time and decide on a plan of action and a goal we have at least a hope of achieving.

WHERE WE HAVE GONE WRONG

The term "banging your head against the wall" seems to sum it up for me. Since the first racist party/group started in this country, the goals have been basically the same and still are. Fundamentally, all they have is a call for the repatriation of all non-Whites from this country. This is all they have to say to the majority of the electorate who, on the whole, have resigned themselves to the status quo and lost the will to fight. It's no use listening to the "spin-doctors" who fill us with false hope and continue to lead us down that never ending garden path, leading us to defeat and, ultimately, our people's extinction. Can't you hear the death rattle? It's getting louder White man, so loud it's deafening. But still you don't hear it, or don't want to hear it.

WHAT IS OUR GOAL?

I believe our goal should be the creation of an autonomous state/country/piece of land/island, whatever we can get. Preferably somewhere in Europe and preferably Scandinavia. "Oh yeah, the occupational government is just gonna give it to you" or "I've heard it all before" I hear you say. Well you're right; the occupational forces won't just give it to us, and yes, you most probably have heard it all before, but usually from people who want you to join their group or donate money to their "Homeland Fund"!
What we are proposing wouldn't mean one group that everyone has to join or follow but rather an international campaign by autonomous groups, then maybe a political front group to negotiate, but only if there is any success.

HOW DO WE ACHIEVE OUR GOALS?

The answer is an international terror/sabotage campaign by TOTALLY autonomous cells and groups. That is if there is still anyone out there that still has the bollocks to put themselves on the line. There's plenty of people that talk and write about fighting the occupational government but few do. You've only got to look at England: How many hundreds of thousands of magazines have gone out calling for a race war? So many times we've had state "agent provocateurs" like the Sargent brothers winding people up to do things whilst never having the bollocks to do it themselves. For four years, Charlie Sargent got fat living off C18's reputation until he was eventually expelled in disgrace. But in the last year before his expulsion, while he was touring the pubs of England bullshitting about himself to everyone, the active members of C18 were making contact with likeminded people across Europe and forming cells, procuring explosives and weapons. Then they launched an international terrorist plot - the first time any British group has ever actually turned to terror! This plot, even though it was thwarted before anyone was killed, set the clearest ever message yet to the occupational forces. What was their response? The media went absolutely nuts and the Government panicked and sanctioned the murder of a C18 member in order to halt the group's activities. The fact that they took such drastic measures shows how worried they are. C18 is a relatively small group, yet it still showed that you can unnerve the Government if you've got the guts. Another worry for the occupational regime was the international way in which C18 operated. Imagine if hundreds of groups and cells around Europe followed suit and started doing the same things, and every time an act of terror or sabotage was carried out, a statement was released to the press demanding that we be granted a "Homeland", hopefully the whole thing would snowball and escalate. You saw the panic that the "Denmark Bombs" caused - imagine if it was happening every week or even every day across Europe by nameless groups and people! How long would it be before they got so terrified and pissed off (especially one of the more liberal wishy-washy Governments like the Scandinavians have) that they would surely have to concede and give us what we want IF enough people got off their arses and IF the campaign was sustained long enough. For fuck's sake, there are hundreds of thousands of us across Europe, surely there are a few hundred of us with the bollocks to do it. Let's say the campaign started in the new millennium. That gives everyone three years to raise money, get explosives and train up. If we caused them enough trouble, surely they'd just want to stick all the racists/National Socialists in one place, it makes sense if they want to stop racial hatred, etc.
Then surely, if we were all together, in one place, out of their lovely multi-racial paradise, then all the racial strife they constantly winge about would end. As we go into the new millennium, the Blacks, the Asians, etc. will all be demanding their own homelands also.
Do you think it can work? It's got to be worth a try because if we keep doing nothing, we don't deserve to live. We might not be able to win, but what alternative do we have?

DO WE LIVE LIKE COWARDS;
OR GO DOWN LIKE WHITE MEN?

BLOOD HONOUR KEEPS ON ROCKING

Surprise, surprise! Since the expulsion of Charlie "The Ginger gerbil" Sargent and his pisshead brother Steve, the B&H/C18 scene has settled down and is once again running smoothly. The shitstirring, the lies, the bullshit has stopped and now that Sargent the human (?) tapeworm can no longer feed on us and use us for his, or rather the state's. own ends. We can now only move forward. Sargent deliberately set us against each other, escalating small arguments into full grown splits. He used us to attack people who had seen through his bullshit such as Ken McLellan who made it clear that he didn't want anything to do with the little mug Sargent. Rather than go face Ken and have a man to man fight, the cowardly Sargent tried to get us to burn Ken's flat down with his wife and kids in it! Sargent did this to scores of other people, most of whom didn't have anything against C18/B&H, but had seen through Sargent and didn't want anything to do with him. He would then turn this round and tell us that they had slagged C18/B&H off or they had done something bad to US, then we would do HIS dirty work. He did this time and time again until we wised up.

Since the fat man got the boot, we've had regular gigs, loads of new bands, loads of new faces at the gigs, CDs released and new magazines. The proof is in the pudding - no Sargent, no trouble! So people, the only way is forward.

UNITY. As for unity, of course we want unity, but we're not gonna get down on our hands and knees and apologise for everything. The way to promote unity is to put on good gigs with no trouble. We've stopped the slagging off now Sargent has gone and it does genuinely look like most of the troubles have been smoothed over.

So here's to the future! Fuck the bullshitters! Fuck the shitstirrers!

IAN STUART

MEMORIAL GIG 1997

Once again, brilliant organisation, a good venue and an excellent atmosphere with comrades from America, New Zealand, Canada, Germany, Sweden, Italy, France and most of the other European countries and good old England in attendance to pay respects on this special date to the fallen founder of B&H. One thing that was pleasing to see was the presence of so many youngsters and age ranges that spanned the board. The most important factor in any movement, as it is in any race, is the youth. Without them we are a dying breed but luckily these youngsters are choosing Blood and Honour and their enthusiasm cannot be matched. All the British B&H bands played with the exception of No Remorse, probably due to Wilf Browning's recent prison spell. We would also like to point out that the information in a recent issue of Searchlight which reported Will and Jacko had had a 'falling out' is, as is usual from Gerry, total bullshit and they will be gigging again soon. Watch this space.

The gig was absolutely great, the atmosphere was buzzing and the numbers were way up. All the bands played well and the sound was Good. This is due to the fact that we now have our own PA system, courtesy of ISD. This saves having to hire and fart around with different systems at every gig and the sound is now consistent. Everyone in attendance would agree that this gig was a fitting tribute to our martyr Ian Stuart and he would have been proud.

HAIL IAN HAIL B&H!

FOREVER IN OUR HEARTS!

Blood & Honour

THE WORLDWIDE SCENE

Few people can fail to see the addresses in magazines of all the new Blood and Honour divisions springing up all over Europe. Finland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, you name it, and the good thing is these are genuine units, not just ones put there for propaganda purposes. These units are comprised of real people, with real magazines and real gigs. What is also evident is the internationalism of the current B&H scene. Comrades all over Europe and the world are genuinely helping each other towards a common goal. This is common sense, the ZOG is international and to be successful in fighting it, we too must be international. The growing militancy of Blood and Honour is especially evident in Scandinavia where B&H units totally support C18, AB, etc. financially and in their propaganda. If every B&H unit worked as hard as our comrades in Scandinavia, then our movement would be unstoppable. They have a new magazine named Blood and Honour Scandinavia, a really professional publication which is printed in English, extremely interesting and well set out in a style attractive to the eye. In fact issue 1 puts most of our long standing unit's publications to shame.

For those of you out there who are quick to slag off the White Power music scene saying, "They never do anything", etc. while you are propping up some bar, just remember this: Everyone who is currently imprisoned in Denmark for the recent bombings, or questioned about it, are involved in the music scene, the people ZOG want to extradite from Britain in connection with it are involved in the music scene and most of the funds needed for this came from the music scene. Need we say any more?

Support the units in your Countries NOW!

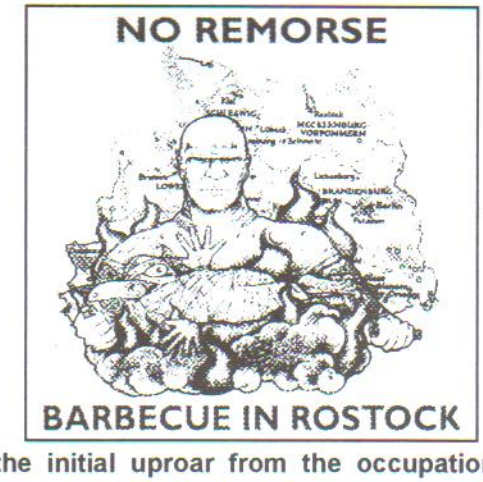
ZOG'S TOP 25 CD HIT LIST

I don't know if you've heard, but the Occupational Government in Germany have just published a list of 25 forbidden CDs. Forbidden, of course, because they don't want you to hear them. You can buy some of the most hard core pornographic filth in Europe quite legally in Germany. But try to sell or buy a CD that contains songs that speak of having pride in your race, the White European Race, then they're gonna throw you in jail - what a fucking joke! The mere possession of just one copy of any of the 25 listed CDs will result in immediate arrest. In all our nations we are suffering from ZOG's crackdown on our basic rights of freedom and expression. However, Germany seems to lead the way in the passing of new anti-freedom laws. This will obviously be followed by the UK, the 'home of democracy', and even in Sweden. As we've stated previously, the Occupational Government's attack on our freedoms is international, and so must our response be!

KRAFTSCHLAG TO BE BANGED UP!

Top German band Kraftschlag are facing prison in Germany over something the singer said 18 months ago. He dared to criticise the Holohoax and now faces prison under Germany's draconian anti-freedom legislation. Now the Labour (?) Party are promising to make 'Holocaust denial' a criminal offence with an instant 3 year jail sentence. Soon there will be no country in Europe where you can speak your mind. We wish our German comrades the best of luck with their future court case. Don't let 'em grind you down!

BARBECUE IN ROSTOCK - ZOG TURN UP THE HEAT



After the initial uproar from the occupational Government over No Remorse's Barbecue in Rostock CD, things still haven't died down. It's been deemed the 'most illegal CD yet' by the Governments of Europe and they have promised to bring the producers and sellers of the CD to THEIR form of justice. Already there have been arrests in Britain and Germany but now the occupational Government is trying to have Marcel Schilf from NS88 in Denmark dragged through its courts and imprisoned. The CD has been bootlegged numerous times and has just been officially repressed yet again. ZOG can't seem to understand that if the kids want to listen to White Power music, they will. We eagerly await No Remorse's next CD, due out February '98.

INTERVIEW WITH NO REMORSE

STRIKEFORCE: Why haven't you been gigging for the last seven months or so?
NR: Well, we had a member in prison that's all. Contrary to reports, no-one has fallen out with Jacko, he's still the singer and he's raring to do another gig.
STRIKEFORCE: There's been a lot of turmoil in the British scene. Has it calmed down now?
NR: Things in Britain are really going great now. Since Charlie "the Ginger gerbil" Sargent and his lowlife brother were expelled from C18/B&H things have really calmed down and people are getting on with the job in hand.
STRIKEFORCE: How did the "Ginger gerbil" as you put it and his brother cause so much shit?
NR: Well, to cut a long story short, the "Ginger gerbil" was nicked for heroin smuggling years ago and it appears that this is when he started working for Special Branch/MI5. They used him to try to destroy the White Power movement in Britain from the British Movement, to the BNP, to B&H to C18. He would just cause mayhem starting rumours, causing splits, grassing militants, you name it, he did it.
STRIKEFORCE: I myself have known Charlie Sargent for years. He doesn't even reach Jacko's kneecaps, he dribbles, he looks like a hunchback, he's a notorious coward, so how did he manage to get away with it for so long?
NR: You've hit the nail right on the head. He is a notorious coward he's also a good bullshitter. He and his brother are absolute no-marks and always wormed in with different firms, then when they (especially the "Ginger gerbil") were in the firm, he would incite everyone with his bullshit to attack other groups or Nationalists, then just sit back and laugh. When he was discovered he would just move onto another group of people and start all over again. The man (or mong) was just a human tapeworm, moving from the BM to Chelsea to the BNP to C18 to B&H until there was no-one left who hadn't wised up to him, hence his expulsion from the movement in disgrace.
STRIKEFORCE: I hear he's now in custody with Martin Cross. What's the script?
NR: We don't want to go into it too much because the case is yet to go to trial, but basically after his expulsion he lured an innocent NS comrade to his house on false pretences and got Cross to stab him in the back. Then both Cross and Sargent made tapes and statements to the police in order to frame Wilf. Luckily for Wilf loads of witnesses came forward to clear him and forensic evidence also proves their statements to be bullshit. If Cross and Sargent hadn't been so keen to stitch Wilf up by making tapes and statements, they would have got away with it, but because their statements are so far-fetched, they signed their own warrants and good riddance. If there's any justice, they'll each get a life sentence and rot in jail. You don't stab an innocent man in the BACK. What scum!
STRIKEFORCE: We don't want to waste any more time on those misfits so tell us about the trouble with the Barbecue in Rostock CD.
NR: Well, for obvious reasons, the press and ZOG went mad calling for the prosecution of the band, etc. as it is the biggest ever selling I.S.D. CD. It has been bootlegged by 4 different people who each pressed between 5 to 7 thousand copies, so someone must like it.
STRIKEFORCE: Are you gonna do another CD?
NR: Oh yeah, it's already written but we have to wait our turn to record it, because we definitely want it on I.S.D. and there are a couple of other bands due to record first.
STRIKEFORCE: You've played about ten gigs in Germany. Have you any plans to go back there?
NR: Course we have, it's the Fatherland.
STRIKEFORCE: Who are your greatest heroes?
NR: The Fuhrer, Rudolf Hess, Robert Matthews, Ian Stuart, David Lane, the list is endless, there have been so many decent men who have done their best for the White Race. These are the men who spur us on.
STRIKEFORCE: Do you support any political/terrorist groups?
NR: We support anyone who acts like a decent White man and we support any group that is worth supporting. Obviously we are 100% behind C18.
STRIKEFORCE: Do you agree with C18's turn to terrorism?
NR: Absolutely, it's a war and in a war you use bombs and you try and kill the enemy, it's as simple as that.
STRIKEFORCE: Have you anything to say as we close?
NR: Yeah, cheers to all of you out there who support us. As for B&H, it's really back on track: 100% behind C18! And more importantly, it's GROWING!

PEOPLE HATERS - NEW CD OUT SOON!

News has just come in from Mark and Co. from the good old USA that the new People Haters CD is almost complete. Mark also tells us that the band has also changed its name to HATEMONGER and the album is awesome, the best yet! The two People Haters CDs that were released were brilliant and everybody went crazy for them. The Hatemonger CD looks set to follow suit. As with the first two CDs, the Hatemonger CD will also be released on I.S.D. Records, the world's most militant music company. The new CD will be available via NS88 or I.S.D. in Denmark. Watch this space.

Also, if Mark gives the go ahead, there will be a live People Haters CD coming out, fingers crossed. This will also be on I.S.D.

VENETO SKINS STILL ROLLING ON

We had a 'phone call from Caio the singer from Peggiore Amico the other night and things are going really well over in Italy. He tells us that the Veneto Front Skins are concentrating on organising gigs, etc. in their own region and are building things up again. Several members are facing race charges, and Gesta Bellica have just released their CD on Tunio Records. Several members of the band have just got out of jail and we hope to get them to play in Britain next year - stay tuned!

B&H DENMARK FLY THE FLAG

This annual Rudolf Hess march took place in Denmark this year. As usual it was a game of cat and mouse with ZOG but the march did go ahead after the DNSB tricked the Old Bill and counter-demonstrators into thinking it was to take place somewhere else.

When the march went ahead, amongst a sea of banners and flags, a massive B&H Denmark flag could be seen giving us some excellent publicity and is another sign of our growth.

Hail Denmark!

DEUTCHLAND - ZOG OUTLAW BLOOD AND HONOUR!

News has just reached us that the occupational Government in Germany has outlawed B&H in an attempt to stifle our growth there. Germany has probably the worst record for anti-NS legislation in Europe, frequently banning NS groups such as has happened to the FAD and NF, so this comes as no surprise. We are told that one skinhead has already been arrested and charged with the wearing of a B&H patch. We will keep readers up to date with this story in future editions. One thing is certain though - Ian Stuart's memory will not die and the growth of Blood and Honour is guaranteed to continue whatever they try to do!

COMMIE BASTARD KRENZ GETS 6 1/2 YEARS

Egan Krenz, the last Communist leader of East Germany was recently sentenced to a mere 6 1/2 years for killing East Germans who jumped the wall in an attempt to join their families stuck on the west side.

Krenz and 2 others were cheered by Marxists who turned up to support them in court. The 'Butcher of Berlin', as Krenz was known, laughed about the deaths of these unarmed German citizens that were shot on his orders, usually in the back, as they tried to escape the red guards. It is known that over 900 Germans perished at the hands of the commies as they tried to escape. We just hope that all the murdering scum involved are brought to justice and put away forever or SHOT!

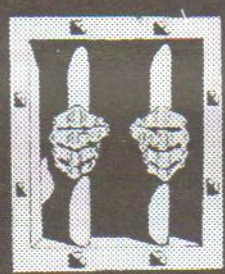
STRIKEFORCE PRISONERS' ASSOCIATION



PRISONERS NOTICE

Up until Slippery Steve Sargent's expulsion from C18, he was in charge of our prisoners' support group, "Behind the Bars". This was set up to help our POWs by sending in magazines, stamps, etc. to help keep their spirits up. It has come to our attention that even before his expulsion he abused his position. When he wanted to spread rumours, he would write letters, mainly abroad, filling them with bullshit knowing that prisoners write a lot of letters to other comrades and anything told to them circulates quickly. Most prisoners never met Sargent and didn't know what he was like. Some may have believed his heroic tales of himself and his brother, which today, even after his expulsion, he is still writing. The way he manipulated certain prisoners is disgraceful and we apologise to any POWs that have received any of his crap. A new prisoners' welfare scheme is being set up called the STRIKEFORCE PRISONERS ASSOCIATION. A prisoners' bulletin is in the pipeline and if any of our readers know of any POWs who would like to receive copies, please send in their details. Obviously, our Association is an international one and we welcome the addresses of POWs overseas. A full list of POWs will appear in the next issue. We also hold no biased attitudes and will support any White Racist who is fighting for our common cause regardless of which group he is involved in. We will also help in whichever way we can the Loyalist Prisoners languishing in ZOG's dungeons in Ulster. Readers can help out by sending old mags, stamps, etc. to the following address:

Free, the Briton full of hate who ordered a bomb for Sharron

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE BOMBS

My parcels of hate
Bomb was to scare Sharron Davies, neo-nazi tells court

There are so many bullshit stories that have been spread concerning what is now known as the "Denmark Bombings" that we feel we have to put the record straight on what was surely one of the most daring acts for years. When the news broke of the bombings, a concerted effort to spread disinformation was carried out, firstly by the press, various secret service agencies, and anyone with an axe to grind against C18 and genuine revolutionaries. In fact, disgraced ex-leader (?) of C18 Charlie "the Ginger Gerbil" Sargent and his brother Slippery Steve were busy spreading lies and bullshit on behalf of the occupational government BEFORE the story had even broken in the press. We contacted C18's Press Secretary and he gave us the following detailed account of what REALLY happened.

To cut a long story short, six months before the bombs and Charlie and Steve Sargent's expulsion from C18, there was a natural sorting out of the men from the boys. The "bombers from the bullshitters" so to speak. It had become clear to the main activists in C18 that all of Sargent's "Declaration of War" statements over the last 4 years were no more than false promises turned out monthly by the "phoney Fuhrer" and that the only acts of terrorism he ever carried out were on his typewriter or in his twisted little mind. The real activists had already set up cells in 5 other European countries while Sargent was content to carry on the bullshit in England. The real activists had raised money in some daring escapades right across Europe. The real activists procured guns, explosives, detonators and trained themselves in the art of revolution. The groundwork was laid for what would have been the biggest ever anti-ZOG offensive in Europe. The plan involved 4 different countries, each country dispatching 10 parcel bombs, making a total of 40 in the first wave. The targets were race-traitors, 'anti-fascists' and Government officials with the exception of one. Just before 'D' day, C18 made a huge mistake which enabled various European Governments to thwart the plot. The Sargents were informed of the plan, not all of it but they were told of the Denmark end of the plot. It is no coincidence that this was the only cell to be compromised. The Sargents were also told of false targets and it is no fluke that when the story first broke in the media, the targets mentioned were the ones that were named.

Back to the plot: Just before the 'D' day, Special Branch from London sent a memo to the Danish ZOG via an intelligence clearing house in Germany. The memo stated that "C18 have now entered their bombing phase" and it gave other details including photo's and passport numbers of the two London C18 men who allegedly masterminded the plot. Danish Secret Service then put a certain Danish C18 unit under constant surveillance, including phone tapping. One of the C18 suspects was then arrested after posting 3 bombs in Sweden. The arrest took place at his Copenhagen flat and as armed police attacked his home with his wife and young baby inside, he opened fire and shot one of the ZOG bastards. The main Danish suspect was taken into custody along with 6 others including his wife. The story broke in the press almost immediately, obviously putting the other 3 cells plans on hold. The three bombs that they discovered in Sweden were addressed to Anti Fascist Action, Sharon Davis and Brad Hollanby. ZOG found others with no addresses on along with the death lists and an arsenal of weapons, detonators and explosive. Meanwhile in England, the Sargent brothers were contacting loads of racists in England and Scotland telling them that they had been sent bombs and this story was backed up by Special Branch who visited racists up and down the country justifying the Sargents' claim. The press and TV then released the same sort of stories. This was a classic sign of deliberate disinformation by the Sargents/SB; its sole aim being to turn other racist groups and individuals against C18 and to escalate disunity.

Months went by until the recent trial of our Danish comrades which ended in long jail sentences for three of them. It is interesting to note that a certain fat grass was putting it about that he was sent a bomb and, surprise, surprise, ZOG's media also backed up his bullshit. Did Special Branch feed this to the press in an attempt to help him at his forthcoming trial? It would also explain why ZOG and its press are deliberately trying to discredit witnesses against THEIR MAN, by both jailing them on trumped up charges so that they are discredited in the witness box or by smearing them in the press for the same ends. What is clear is that SB/The Sargents/The Media all colluded together in an attempt to stop the real revolutionaries. As it stands now, the Danish authorities are trying to extradite alleged C18 members from London but so far they have failed because:

1/ The Danish comrade involved refuses to testify against them.

2/ You cannot use foreign phone bugs in a British court of extradition.

There can be no doubt: If all 40 of the bombs had reached their targets, England would have been in chaos, no doubt about it. In our view the bombs created a watershed in Britain: All the beerdrinkers and bullshitters bottled out. We hope it has finally sunk in - WE ARE AT WAR AND TO WIN A WAR YOU HAVE TO ACTUALLY TAKE PART IN IT AND IF THAT MEANS MORE BOMBS THEN SO BE IT!

Don't interfere with us and don't stand in our way. You saw how ZOG and the press gloated how they had smashed C18's international terror campaign but the smile soon left their faces when Swedish C18 supporters sent a little warning to the ZOG Justice Minister and PAJEN in Gothenburg! ZOG created us and now it's out of control, they can't stop us! We have cells in Germany, Britain, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Belgium - the next millennium starts in 2 years time. We promise exciting happenings when it does!

DEATH TO ZOG!
DEATH TO COWARDS!
DEATH TO THE WEAK!

Now study ZOG's press - pages 14, 15 and16.

Bomb was to scare Sharron Davies, neo-nazi tells court

From CHARLES FERRO
In Copenhagen

A DANISH neo-Nazi told a court yesterday that he sent a parcel bomb to Sharron Davies 'to scare her' because of her marriage to black athlete Derek Redmond.

Thomas Derry Nakaba said he received materials for the device and instructions from the British far-Right group Combat 18.

Police intercepted the bomb last January, but other British sports stars in mixed-race marriages, such as Frank Bruno and Paul Ince, were warned to be on their guard.

Nakaba, 27, told the Copenhagen court that an Englishman named William Browning, whom he believed to be a leader of Combat 18, gave him what were said to be explosives as well as a pistol and addresses to which bombs were to be sent.

One of them was to go to Davies, the former Olympic swimmer turned TV presenter.

Nakaba said he was told to send another bomb to the British headquarters of a rival faction within Combat 18 — 18 because the first and eighth letters of the alphabet are A and H, Adolf Hitler's initials.

'English told me what to do'

A third was to go to the British anti-fascist Action organisation.

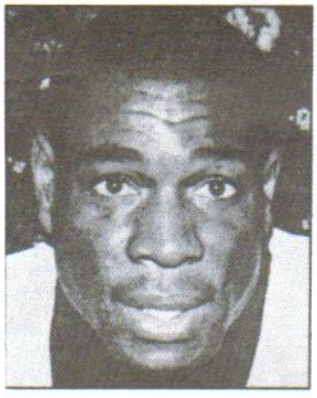
The purpose was 'to scare them', Nakaba told the jury. 'That's what Browning said.

'The English kept calling to remind me what I needed to do.'

He did not say why he chose not to send parcel bombs to two other addresses he was given — Searchlight, which monitors neo-Nazi organisations, and a group called British Hammer Skinheads.

Danish detectives, tipped off by a police intelligence clearing house in Germany, followed Nakaba in January to the Swedish port of Malmo and retrieved the three devices, concealed in video cassettes, after he had posted them in a mail box.

Nakaba was arrested in a raid on a house north of Copenhagen. As police broke in, he shot an officer in the thigh.



Frank Bruno: Warned

He later said that he thought he was under attack by Leftist opponents and fired in self-defence.

Danish forensic experts said that the substance inside the bombs was inactive and would not have exploded — but the detonators alone could have blown the recipient's hand off.

Nakaba told the court: 'It looked like modelling wax and I never thought it was real explosive.'

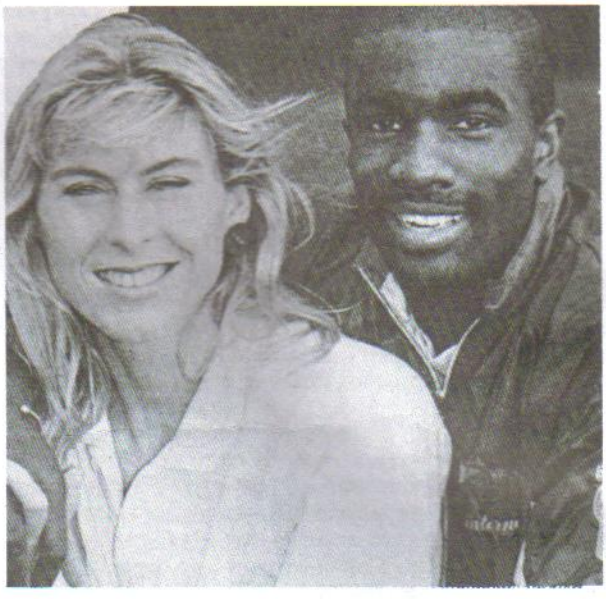
He said he believed the packages were meant to frighten rather than cause injury. The prosecutors are convinced, however, that Nakaba and his co-defendants Michael Volder and Nicky Steengaard, both 21, did believe they were sending deadly devices.

The three are charged under anti-terrorism laws which carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment, though legal experts say the prospects of them receiving such a punishment are nil.

While admitting sending the parcels, all three have pleaded not guilty. Their apparent strategy is to reduce any sentence they might receive if found guilty by claiming that the parcels were meant only to frighten, not harm.

Nakaba is also charged with negligent wounding of the policeman.

The verdict is expected on September 4.



GARY SMITH OF NO REMORSE TARGETTED

The ANaL have recently put up posters around Cardiff with Gary's photo on them. They rant on about him being a racist and a nazi, etc. Yawn, yawn, yawn, heard it all before.....

STITCHED UP OR WHAT?

Darren Wells was recently arrested after Scotland's ZOG police flew down to London to arrest him for possessing an offensive weapon. Now get this: the alleged offence happened over a year before. This does not happen, there's no way they would normally come down to London for such a minor charge. The real reason is because Darren is a vital witness against the slobfather and Special Branch arranged his arrest in an attempt to discredit him as a witness. They look after their own. Darren's ended up doing 3 months. Taking the piss or what?

EUROPE AWAKE!
COMBAT 18

Free, the Briton full of hate who ordered a bomb for Sharron

From DAVID WILLIAMS
In Copenhagen

A TERRORIST plot to send parcel bombs to sports stars in mixed-race marriages was masterminded by a British neo-Nazi.

The 26-year-old former skinhead ordered a Danish thug to select targets including former Olympic swimmer Sharron Davies.

The Briton supplied a hit list, explosive and a handgun. He was secretly recorded by police during telephone conversations discussing the plot.

Yet even though three Danish neo-Nazis were jailed by a Copenhagen court last week for posting bombs to England, the South Londoner who played the pivotal role has escaped prosecution.

Danish detectives have told the Daily Mail that they wanted to bring terrorist charges against the racist Briton, who cannot be named for legal reasons. They cannot do so because the conspiracy was hatched in Britain and there is a lack of concrete evidence in Denmark.

The Briton — a key figure in the extreme Right-wing Combat 18 group — was named as the man who supplied the addresses of targets including Sharron Davies, the former Olympic swimming medallist who is married to black athlete Derek Redmond.

Three bombs built into video cassettes destined for Britain were intercepted by detectives in the Swedish seaside city of Malmo in January after a telephone-tapping operation following a tip-off from Scotland Yard.

Police moved in and arrested neo-Nazi thug Thomas Derry Nakaba, 27, and his two accomplices Michael Volder

"You are under surveillance" and Nicky Steensgaard, both 21, who were last week all convicted under Danish anti-terrorism laws.

Nakaba, who used the gun to shoot a policeman who tried to arrest him, was jailed for eight years and Volder and Steensgaard for three years.

At Nakaba's modern flat in the town of Nivaa, north of Copenhagen, police found a Combat 18 'hit list' of dozens of sports stars, celebrities and politicians.

Following the arrests other sports stars, such as boxer Frank Bruno, England soccer player Paul Ince and Olympic medallist Kriss Akabusi, who are in mixed marriages, were warned they could be targets. Among others listed at Nakaba's home were MPs Peter Hain and Kate Hoey, TV presenter Denis Norden, Vanessa Redgrave, Anna Ford and Bernard Levin.

'The Briton told Nakaba that Sharron Davies was a race traitor and that she should be taught a lesson,' said Danish detective Tom Damgaard. 'In his apartment we found literature from Combat 18 in England describing exactly how a bomb could be made and how it should be sent.

Target: Anna Ford

Police also found dozens of Combat 18 'calling cards' with skull and crossbones and messages to be left on the crumpled bodies of their victims. One said : 'You are under surveillance and registered. Combat 18.' and another 'Combat 18 — Don't Try and Mess with the Master Race. Sieg Heil.'

It was at a rally in Denmark, attended by neo-Nazis from throughout Europe, that crop-haired Nakaba met the Londoner and a second member of Combat 18 with an equally disgraceful record.

He was one of the thugs behind the violence in 1995 that caused England's football match in Dublin to be abandoned. Nakaba told Danish police he was impressed by the ruthless violence shown by the Britons. One picture seen by the Mail shows the Londoner punching a passer-by in the face, another shows him throwing a bottle.

Target: Kate Hoey

Nakaba was invited to England and over the following months members of Combat 18 made several trips to Scandanivia. He told detectives that he was hugely impressed by the man and his colleague, the fact that they earned more than £100,000 a year from the hardcore neo-Nazi music industry and by the fear spread by the Combat 18 movement.

The group was formed in 1992 and derived its name from the first and eighth letters of the alphabet, A and H — Adolf Hitler's initials. At one stage it drew its members almost exclusively from football thugs, including those attached to Chelsea, Arsenal, Millwall, Charlton, Reading, Oxford and Portsmouth. They were identified as being Target: Sharron Davies and her husband Derek Redmond. The Briton told his Danish henchman that Sharron was a 'race traitor and must be taught a lesson' behind violence at several games and as victims lay bleeding they dropped 'calling cards' which read : 'You have been ethnically cleansed by Combat 18.'

In October last year he and a third member of Combat 18 travelled to Denmark from Poland and handed explosives to Nakaba together with a Czech-made 9mm handgun.

In January detectives eavesdropped as the Briton asked the Dane to confirm he had sent the bombs.

Nakaba made three devices to be posted to England, each powered by 9-volt batteries.

He addressed one to Sharron Davies and Derek Redmond, one to the Anti-Fascist Action organisation and the third to a wing of Combat 18 which was involved in an internal struggle with the Briton.

On January 17 police watched as Nakaba, carrying the packages in a plastic bag, travelled the 45 minutes on the ferry from Copenhagen to Malmo where he posted them.

Detectives say that in one of the bugged telephone conversations, the Briton told Nakaba: 'I am very glad you have done this for me because then we can go on to something bigger.'

BLACKS Vs BROWNS

At the recent Aryan Fest which was called off in Wales, a demo by the reds was also cancelled. Apparently a group of C18 supporters were looking for these scumbags but unfortunately couldn't find them. Meanwhile a group of Blacks looking for racists bumped into a group of Asians looking for racists, but it all went pear-shaped and they ended up fighting each other. Billy meanwhile had his home raided and was charged with possession of a can of CS gas and had various CDs, etc. seized.

UNLUCKY LASS

Andrea French has finally admitted to her husband that she had an affair with Charlie Sargent, POOR GIRL!

FOOTBALL - ITALY

There was the usual bollocks in the press about hooligans, Generals drinking pink champagne, etc. According to a few of the lads who went there, there were quite a few skirmishes in and around Rome. As usual, the ZOG police took out their frustration on innocent fans including women and kids. Nothing ever changes.

GYPSIES TAKE THE PISS

Up to 800 Slovakian gypsies have been pouring in through the Channel Tunnel after a TV station broadcast a programme informing them that they can claim benefit in Britain. Of course on arrival they claimed 'political asylum' saying that they had fled racist police and skinheads. If they were fleeing persecution, why didn't they flee to just over their own borders and out of danger? But no, they came all the way across Europe to Britain, the dustbin of the world. Everyone worldwide knows that the British are a soft touch so what else can we expect?

ALLEGED C18 SUPPORTERS ATTACKED BY ZOG

On a recent trip to a football match in Liverpool, several lads were arrested and subjected to a sustained assault after they had been handcuffed and taken to the local ZOG shop. Apparently the local Tactical Support Group (T.S.G.) had been tipped off that C18 were coming to the match. Despite no offences being committed, they were all badly beaten while handcuffed on the floor and sprayed with CS gas. The boys in blue never cease to amaze me, would they go down Toxteth and pull the same stunt?

I don't think so!

C18 IN COURT IN SWEDEN

Del, an alleged British C18 member, was arrested and remanded in custody in Sweden accused of attacking a group of red doormen. When the case came to trial, it was thrown out of court as it seems the witnesses were too scared to testify.

Oh dear!

'Bombers targeted TV girl Sharron'

BY ALEX HENDRY

BRITISH neo-Nazis were behind a plot to send a letter bomb to TV presenter Sharron Davies, a court heard yesterday.

The device, and two others also destined for addresses in England, were intercepted by police.

Thomas Nakaba, 27, told a court in Copenhagen he and two others were given five bombs and detonators by a top member of the British-based Combat 18 group, which takes its name from Adolf Hitler's initials,

SHARRON: Letter bomb

A being the first letter in the alphabet and H the 8th.

Sharron Davies was targeted because she is married to black ex-athlete Derek Redmond, the court was told. It was feared other sports heroes such as Frank Bruno and Paul Ince — whose wives are white — could be under threat.

The bombs were hidden inside video cassettes and were powerful enough to blow off a victim's hand.

Nakaba, head of Combat 18 in Denmark, posted three of the five bombs before being arrested.

Two of the devices were intended for Combat 18 members involved in a power struggle. Two were meant for anti-fascist groups and the fifth was to be sent to Sharron Davies.

The men deny terrorist charges. The trial continues.

Jail for Nazis in mail bomb attack on star

EXPRESS REPORTER

THREE Danish neo-Nazis were jailed yesterday for sending letter bombs to British targets in a racist terror campaign.

One intended victim was former Olympic swimmer Sharron Davies, who is married to black sprinter Derek Redmond.

Also targeted were the Anti-Fascist Action organisation and, as part of a struggle between right-wing factions, a member of the far-right Combat 18 group.

Police said the devices, disguised as videos, contained dummy explosive but were connected to live detonators capable of blowing someone's hand off.

The bombs were posted in the Swedish port of Malmo last January, but were intercepted by Danish detectives following a tip-off by Scotland Yard officers.

A detective was shot in the leg during a police raid of the suspects' house near Copenhagen.

Thomas Nakaba, 27, Michael Volder and Nicky Steensgaard, both 21, denied preparing three letter bombs.

Nakaba also denied negligent wounding of the policeman, claiming that he had believed he was under attack from left-wing opponents and had fired in self-defence through a closed door. The jury found them guilty of all charges. Nakaba was sentenced to eight years and his accomplices were each jailed for three years. Under Denmark's anti-terrorism laws they could have been given life imprisonment.

Nakaba told the court that he was acting under orders from a faction of Combat 18, named after the first and eighth letters of the alphabet — Adolf Hitler's initials. He said an Englishman, who was linked to the group, had given him a gun, the addresses of the intended victims and what he had believed to be real explosives.

Neo-Nazis have long been attracted to Denmark for its liberal freedom of speech laws — an irritation to neighbouring Germany, where Nazi activity is banned.

TARGET: Davies, Redmond and son Elliot

84 YEAR OLD JANE BIRDWOOD CHARGED UNDER GOVERNMENT'S VICIOUS RACE LAWS!

For the third time in 6 years, Lady Jane Birdwood has been charged with publishing material likely to incite racial hatred. It seems Jane has offended the occupational Government by continuing to distribute THE LONGEST HATRED, a pamphlet not exactly endearing to the chosen ones. We wish Jane the best of luck in her fight against ZOG's tyranny.

JOHN TYNDALL AND WIFE ATTACKED BY RED SCUM

After a recent BNP meeting in East London, JT and his wife were attacked by a large gang of reds. Mr Tyndall and his wife were injured in the assault which just shows the Marxist scum up for what they are, attacking a lone man and his wife whilst there are 30 of them. No doubt the BNP's revenge will be sweet.

WE ARE LEFT-WINGERS WE ARE REVOLUTIONARIES!

One thing that always bugs me is the way in which we are referred to as being 'right-wingers' and the way in which we always refer to ourselves as right-wingers. The terms left and right date back to before the French Revolution. The pro-Government supporters sat on the right side of the French Parliament and the anti-Government supporters sat on the left. Hence the term 'right-wing' for the Government reactionaries and 'left-wing' for the revolutionaries.

This has been the term ever since, but when people talk of 'left-wing' today, they are referring to communists, Marxists, anarchists, etc. and when they speak of the 'right-wing' they are talking about US. How can this be? We are anti-Government, we don't just criticize, we want the total destruction of this occupational Government or we want to be given our own land where we can govern ourselves. Looking around at the groups that make up the so-called 'right-wing', they range from Tories, to Monarchists, to Capitalists, to Christian groups. You name it, they're all classed as right-wing. I'm sorry, but I don't class Margaret Thatcher as a comrade, I don't look up to Prince Charles and Co. and I don't agree with the rich Industrialists/Capitalists out for what they can get. Yet all these are called right-wingers. We also seem to accept as comrades anybody who waves a swastika and it doesn't matter what misfits they are. The same goes for most of the right-wing/Nationalist groups. Probably the only thing we agree on is the race issue. Most of these so-called Nationalist groups, if voted to power, would take part in and support the Capitalist society, whereas we want to totally destroy the old, sick regime and start again!

If we look around at the so-called right-wing over the last 10 years, you'll have to agree that until C18 turned to terrorist activities, the right-wing was just a drinking club. It's OK meeting up and getting pissed, beating up a few reds or chasing a couple of Blacks or Asians up the road when they dare to walk past the pub where there's about 50 of you, but that doesn't exactly take too much courage does it? And it certainly isn't revolutionary!

When I look back and think of all the mistakes that have taken place in OUR struggle, the weirdoes, the inadequates, the perverts and the bully boys - those who believe the 'Hollywood Nazi' image and join up to be part of a gang that beats up Blacks and takes liberties when they're a mob seems to come to mind. Most of these types, if you turned round and said, "Right, let's go up to Hackney or Broadwater Farm and kick off with the Blacks", would stick their heads back into their pints and bottle out. The same goes with all the punch-ups and rows I've ever been involved in with the reds, etc., when it goes off, it's only ever a handful of blokes that get stuck in and do the business. In all the rows I've had in C18, it always seemed to be the SAME few every time. And it seems that the so-called 'right-wing' has always been like this: 99% of them are not revolutionaries, they are happy to keep on playing ZOG's little games: Playing us off against the reds in stage-managed confrontations, arresting a few on either side, using it to bring in tougher laws. Whilst all this is going on, both sides think they're really DOING SOMETHING, but fuck all ever changes: More non-Whites pour in, Big Brother tightens its grip and the death rattle gets louder. It's time to drop all this right-wing bullshit White man. Get rid of all the excess baggage and think and act like revolutionaries. If I turned around and said nuclear weapons and power should be scrapped, you'd all think I was a red, yet none of you want to live in a world contaminated with nuclear waste. If I started slagging off the destruction of our forests and environment, you'd think I was some stupid dreadlocked hippy, yet you don't agree with the fat Capitalists who get rich from such destruction do you? The point is we have all been programmed to think like right-wingers, not as revolutionaries and not as left-wingers which is what we ARE!

Adolf Hitler was a true revolutionary and National Socialism is a left-wing movement, that is for sure. Hitler fought for the workers and the folk. If the Allies hadn't forced a war, he would have been able to complete the National Socialist revolution. Sadly, Germany lost the war, making our task 100 times more difficult.

We must act as revolutionaries, but we must also be realists. Hitler rose to power in the 1930s in a time of chaos and revolution. There were millions of demobbed soldiers who felt betrayed by the Government. People were starving, there were 6 million unemployed. Hitler seized the opportunity as only a great leader could. The communists had the same advantages yet they failed to achieve victory. I don't think conditions will ever be the same again, and I know we will never have a great leader like Adolf Hitler, but he is our spiritual leader and we must work towards a time when we can again put his ideas into practice. The days of mass popular movements are over; instead we must scientifically put into action revolutionary ideas. We must study past revolutionary groups that gained success and their methods. We must also study other groups' failures and avoid them.

We MUST change our whole outlook. The brave, the warriors, the men with courage will act anyway, as they always have done in times of crisis: Revolutions are always led by the few.

So White man, tell the big talkers and the typewriter terrorists to fuck off. Don't listen to the phoney right-wingers and their outdated bullshit. They are dinosaurs White man, and remember what happened to them; they didn't adapt so they became EXTINCT.

BE A REVOLUTIONARY!
FIGHT LIKE A WHITE MAN!

FOR A NATIONAL SOCIALIST REVOLUTION!

THE SEDITIONIST'S GUIDE TO Z.O.G. OPPRESSION

GENERAL TRACES

FINGERPRINTS

The science of fingerprint examination is called dactyloscopy. We are born with our fingerprints, and we'll never be able to change them or get rid of them. Whenever you touch something with your fingertips you leave behind your calling card. The police will have a varying degree of difficulty in reproducing your prints depending on the surface upon which it lies. Obviously surfaces such as glass, marble, chrome, etc. will be the easiest, whilst it is almost impossible to lift prints from brickwork or untreated wood. A fingerprint is basically the fatty, acidic residue left on a surface in the exact shape of the ridge lines of your fingertips. Because a finger print is composed of sweat, which is an acid, in some instances it will etch itself onto metal. This is most likely to occur with crowbars, hammers, chisels, etc. and can be erased by rubbing down the said tools with coarse wire wool after use. The police are continually perfecting their methods of print detection, because they are such a foolproof piece of personal identity. They can take prints from skin (if they really try), from tightly woven fabrics, especially synthetic ones, and paper.

To convict, the police need to show 12 matching features of a fingerprint. In practice, these can be found on just one square centimetre of skin area. Fingerprints are fairly hard to destroy, and even immersion in water will not do the job completely, so if you are going to throw something over the bridge, don't forget to wipe it down first. Unless an object is totally consumed, fire is also not a sure method of erasing prints, as a layer of carbon can cover them, and keep them recognisable. The older a print becomes, the harder it is to reproduce, although, in theory, it will last forever, as long as it has not been disfigured. Fingerprints are kept on the Police National Computer (PNC) in the form of encoded data, and as such, do not need to be visually checked to be found to match. A specialist will analyse the fingerprint and turn it into a series of four digit numbers. These numbers are then entered into the PNC, which will return the location of any matching fingerprints held by the Fingerprint Bureau at New Scotland Yard. These matches will be examined further in detail to see if any of the candidates presented by the PNC exactly matches those found at the scene of the crime.

The PNC fingerprint index is used roughly 300,000 times a year. A new system of fingerprint recognition has been developed which involves hyper-computers, and which can visually translate a single print into unique and complex computer data, thus making positive I.D. from a partial found print possible. This system will be in use shortly.

The police show a great deal of interest in everyone's prints, to the extent that babies are now being fingerprinted at birth in some countries, in case they get 'lost'. How touching! In the station, the police will always try and take your prints. Since the introduction of the Criminal Evidence Act, they have more or less complete freedom to do so, without having to go to a magistrate anymore. In theory, it is possible to smudge or blur our fingerprints. One way is to leave plenty of soap on your hands, after you've been made to wash them, and another is to try and 'help' the police. The idea is that you relax your fingers while they roll them over the sheet. If you apply too much pressure, or slide about a bit, you might smudge a couple. On the other hand they might just tear them up and start again, or even tear you up and start again!

GLASS TRACES

Definately one of the most important areas of forensics for people like us to know about. Every time that glass is smashed, tiny shards of the stuff fly everywhere. For practical purposes it is wisest to assume that anyone even remotely near to breaking glass is covered in the stuff. It sticks to things like shit to a blanket, especially loose fibred cloth, such as woolen hats. The only way to get rid of it is to throw away anything you may have been wearing. Glass also likes to get embedded in the soles of shoes. The police can identify different makes and types of glass, and therefore can put you at a certain place at a certain time. Fine, broken glass powder will stick to the smooth surfaces of tools, and fibres from your clothing will stick to the sharp edges of broken glass. The best way to break glass without covering yourself in traces is from a very long distance, using a powerful slingshot and marbles, or for toughened bank windows, steel ball bearings. But, remember, marbles and ball bearings retain your prints very well, so wear gloves! Or why not try glass etching fluid? You can get it easily in craft shops, and with it you can write a message on a window that can never be removed, bar replacing the whole window paine. N.B. In some towns you have to sign for etching fluid, and in some instances shopkeepers report sales to the police.

DUST TRACES

For the police to convict you on the basis of dust traces takes a great deal of work on their part, involving painstaking work with powerful microscopes. The composition of dust in your clothes can tell them where you may have been (e.g. a metal foundry) and at what time of the year (by identifying the spores of seasonal plants). By just washing your clothes thoroughly you can get rid of most of these traces, but as always, the safest thing is to ditch them. It is unusual, but not unknown, for the police to use dust traces to convict. These traces are more useful as a last resort for clues, when other avenues have failed. They are chiefly used to find out where and for how long something has been; e.g. guns, bodies, stolen goods.

In brief, the investigation of these traces is only likely to come up in a serious case, and should you start to worry about traces this tiny, then paranoia is taking over from sensible precaution. If the police threaten to use them against you, then it indicates that they most likely have nothing better to go on.

WOOD TRACES

Wood will yield some information to the investigator. It is possible for him/her/it to match small pieces of wood to each other, even from samples as small as sawdust or splinters. If someone has been introducing your local red's head to a piece of 4 be 2, then a match can be made to the piece it was cut/sawed. When they remove the said lump from your red's head, it will be checked for foreign bodies, such as textile fibres, paint flakes, hairs, and other incriminating evidence. If a baseball bat were to be used instead, and it is not disposed of, then it can be linked to the 'crime' by comparison with the splinters it has left in the skull as well as traces of varnish or resin, and the bat itself will carry traces of skin, hair, blood, not to mention matching dents! There is no point in keeping such weapons after they have been used.

SOIL AND PLANT TRACES

A forensic scientist can tell roughly where you have been from the composition of the dirt and soil that you will have picked up on your travels. If, let's say, you've been keeping warm by standing next to a burning portacabin on a building site, then traces of sand, cement, gypsum, gravel, lime, etc. will have collected on your shoes and clothes. By the same token, if you have been watching Lord Anthony Wedgewood Benn's stately ancestral home burn to the ground, then traces of earth from his garden will be upon you, as will traces of plant life, such as pollen from the rare gladiolae that you may have brushed against. Once again, it is best to dispose of any clothing.
These traces are used to put you at a certain place, and in some instances, at a certain time. As with dust traces, don't let the police bluff a confession out of you by saying that these traces are cast iron evidence; they are certainly not and can be disputed in court.

HAIR TRACES

We all shed hair, and we shed it all the time. If we stay in one place for any length of time, then it is certain that we will leave samples of our hair in the vicinity. It is most likely to be lodged in the clothing of someone with whom you have had close contact (i.e. the red you just throttled). Hair will tell the forensic expert many things; where it came from on the body (scalp, beard, crotch, eyebrows, nose, armpit), how long your hair is, whether it has been cut recently, whether you have shaved recently, if you have been using any specific chemicals on it such as dyes, etc. They can also tell if you fall into the racial categories of Caucasoid, Negroid, Mongoloid or even mixtures of the three. They can tell your sex and blood type.
It is harder to tell the colour of your hair, as individual strands differ in hue from each other. It becomes easier if they possess more hairs. The good news is that conclusive proof of ID is NOT possible, BUT they can prove your innocence, in the same way that parentage can only be disproved through blood tests. On the other hand, if they have a sample of your hair and it is 2 foot long, dyed green, and you've used superglue to spike it, then they'd probably have a good case for positive ID - wear a tight fitting hat - even if you're a skinhead.

SHOE TRACES

There are thousands of styles and sizes of footwear and each one is distinctive, even more so when it has been worn for a while and picked up marks of wear and tear. Basically, a clear footprint is as useful to a forensic expert as a fingerprint. Yet again you can throw away your shoes but better still get a crappy pair second hand and only wear them for the activity then dump them, without letting your closest friends or relatives know you ever had them. Whilst your in a cell, the pigs can always con your wife or girlfriend into telling them what sort of footwear you have and this could be a problem in court later if one of the pairs is missing.

Shoe prints can be left behind on surfaces such as lino or marble. On soft surfaces such as mud, earth, dog shit, etc. shoe impressions will be left behind. Identification can be made from these and is watertight evidence if a comparison is made. Shoes also carry traces away with them, such as oil, petrol, glass splinters and other such giveaways. Never wear them in your home.
Tracker dogs will be able to follow the smell from your shoes but not for more that 10 to 12 hours afterwards, and then only in favourable conditions. Roads that smell of exhaust fumes, petrol and rubber will mask your smell. The best conditions for tracker dogs are unspoilt meadows during moist and cool weather.

BLOOD TRACES

There are several instances where blood may be spilt, and for this reason it makes sense to know as much about it as possible. Blood is very hard to get rid of once it has got on you or your clothing. Even dry cleaning will not remove it thoroughly. Should you be near to someone who has been punched in the nose or stabbed, you will be covered in a fine spray of blood droplets.
A forensic scientist can detect, retrieve and examine the minutest traces of blood, and the amount of information to be gathered depends on the circumstances. In the laboratory, a fresh, warm pint of blood can show the type, the sex of the donor, any illnesses peculiar to the donor or any drugs or medication used recently. In practice, however, the smaller the quantity and the older the sample, the harder the task. Importantly, a blood sample cannot be positively proved to be yours, although it can be proven that it isn't.

D.N.A.

A new development that has only recently become available to the police is 'genetic fingerprinting' using D.N.A. molecules, as unique to each person as a fingerprint. Since 1996 all people arrested by the police have had a sample of their D.N.A. taken, usually from the roof of their mouths. D.N.A. can be obtained from any secretion from the body such as saliva, urine, mucus, sweat, etc. and from blood, hair and flakes of skin. If someone were to attempt to commit a crime such as murder then great care would have to be taken by the perpetrator, especially if they had already had a D.N.A. sample taken. A simple sneeze or cough could release enough mucus to leave D.N.A. behind, a great help to the police in their search for the killer. Most murders are committed by someone who already knows the victim, so the police are likely to ask the deceased's family, friends and aquaintances to give a voluntary D.N.A. sample and anyone who refused would have a court order brought to force them to give a sample or the police could get one off a toothbrush or the like. At the moment this form of detection is really only used for serious crimes such as murder or rape but as things continue on this downward spiral and the people start to fight back, this could be used to combat things as small as a sticker (your saliva mixed with the gum) deemed to 'incite racial hatred' (terrorism in the system's eyes). Take utmost care when doing anything. Wear full face masks and gloves if necessary.

TEXTILE TRACES

There is not a lot tosay about these traces that is not common sense.....just think of your clothes as blotting paper that will soak up incriminating evidence like crazy! Dust, soil, chemicals, blood, petrol, paint, the list is endless. Clothing will also leave behind particles of their fabric, and as with gloves, will leave impressions should you sit or lean on anything soft. Traces of fibre and debris from your own environment will be carried by your clothes and left at the scene. For instance, the fibres from your sofa, carpet, car furnishing, etc. will be carried by your trousers (say), and may be left wherever you go. To circumvent this, wear old clothes, and discard them afterwards. Remember, if you wear them back home, you will also be carrying back traces from wherever you may have been.

TOOL TRACES

In much the same way that a bullet will retain scratches from the barrel of the gun from which it was fired, then tools such as chisels, pliers, bolt cutters, knives, screwdrivers, etc. will leave identifying marks at the scene of an investigation. These marks can be matched to the tool later using comparison or stereo microscopes. Most obviously, the shear marks on a cut padlock can be linked to the cutters. If the same pair of boltcutters has been doing the rounds, and you're nicked with it, you might find yourself being held responsible for any number of unsolved 'crimes'. If such tools have been used to break into somewhere like a Marxist bookshop and serious damage such as arson has taken place, then it is courting disaster to hold on to them. For less dodgy instances, the working edges of tools can be given a new 'face' by filing or re-sharpening, but only if the tool is in good condition, and not badly pitted or scarred. Tools are not just made of metal; objects such as rope, string, tape, etc. are just as incriminatory, and lend themselves to comparative analysis.

GLOVE TRACES

Although it is always best to wear gloves to avoid leaving fingerprints behind, you should be aware that gloves can sometimes leave as much information. Gloves leave traces of the fabric they are made from on anything they touch, especially broken glass, fencing, masonry and rough wood. They should be thrown away after use or positive links can be found through analysis. Plastic or rubber gloves will leave your prints on the inside and some thin surgical gloves can still allow your prints/impressions to show up on shiny/hard surfaces. If discarded gloves are found, traces of sweat will be present as well as comparitive traces such as wood splinters, paint flakes, glass splinters, etc. from the crime scene. Also you are going to look dead suspicious wearing gloves in mild weather, especially if there are more than one of you and you are all wearing them.

BODY SECRETION TRACES

The human body produces various fluids and secretions apart from blood. As mentioned in the D.N.A. chapter, these include spit, sweat, tears, earwax, urine, snot, etc. Apart from D.N.A. which is conclusive, any illnesses that you may have will be apparent on examination of any of these secretions found. These illnesses could then be traced to you by examining the medical files of all known members of the group you are involved in. i.e. A sample of spit found at the scene may show that you are a diabetic. By checking the known sympathisers of any group they deem responsible for the 'crime' they can then look through lists of registered diabetics and find your name. Then they can take a D.N.A. test from you to prove you were there. Avoid spitting, etc. and if possible wear a mask that covers your nose and mouth.

VEHICLE TRACES

Vehicle traces refer to any parts of forensic evidence that may be left by motor transport. Firstly, tyre tracks; these are usually left in soft ground, and not on hard top roads, although they may be found in soft tar, dog shit, etc. and in the case of a collision usually in the flesh of the victim(s). These traces will identify the make of tyre, and most instances will prove unique to one tyre, due to the characteristic wear. The distance between tyre tracks will indicate axle width and chassis length, thus indicating the type of vehicle. Some cars carry unique tyres, for instance imported, or small production runs. Transfer traces are those which are left on the scene due to collision or contact. Most commonly this involves paint flakes. These are always left in the case of any contact. As well as indicating the exact colour of the vehicle, when studied microscopically they will identify the brand of car and very often the model. This is due to the fact that auto paint can consist of over 14 layers of primer, paint, laquer, etc. which are unique to different manufacturers. From one paint flake it is possible to know the make, the model, colour, previous colour(s) and the year of manufacture of a given car. Due to the extensive registration of vehicles, this means that the police have a large amount of information to work on.

Other types of transfer traces chiefly consist of trim that may have been dislodged, such as hubcaps, bits of windscreen, light covers, door handles, those stupid rubber earth strips that hang off the rear bumper, aerials, coon tails, furry dice, etc. All these things lend themselves to comparative analysis.

The direction and speed of a vehicle can be estimated from the direction of brake traps, dripping oil, etc.

In conclusion, as vehicles are so closely monitored in this country (M.O.T., license, insurance, tax, etc.) the police have a great deal of evidence to go on already, before any crime has been committed, they always monitor supporters of 'fringe' political groups anyway, so it is not advisable to use your own car for anything dodgy. It may be spotted by the video cameras that infest our inner cities and, especially, on petrol station forecourts. Red cars get stopped more that dull cars and a man and a woman get stopped less times than single drivers. 'Flash' cars succumb to the 'envy factor' in coppers, and also if driven by someone looking like the typicle 'fascist' (i.e. a skin with a Union Jack sticker on the boot).

ARSON AND FIRE TRACES

It's a fact that fire does not destroy evidence and the Fire Investigation Unit who turn up if a fire looks suspicious possess a large degree of skill in being able to determine the flashpoint of the fire and what caused it. The can also tell what flammable substance was used to start it (petrol, paraffin or whatever).

Chemicals used to start a fire will almost certainly end up on the clothes of the person(s) who started it. Particles of soot will also lodge in the clothing and hair. Many arsonists have been caught because they wanted to come back and watch the fire.

BALLISTIC AND FIREARM TRACES

In Britain, which has such a small number of private firearms, the forensic investigation of ballistics is considered of paramount importance. For this reason, extreme care must be taken when getting involved with them.

Firstly, the potential of the bullet. If it is recovered in good condition, then it will reveal the calibre of the weapon, the type and often the manufacturer. A bullet will remain in good condition if it enters flesh or any other soft material. If it hits thick metal or concrete, etc. it will be disfigured, but will still retain many of its identifying characteristics. Certain types of bullet are meant to fragment on contact. These are bullets such as Dum Dum, Mercury Tip, Hollow Point or Explosive. Whilst this makes the forensic investigator's job harder, it doesn't stop it. No matter what sort of bullet has been used, it's always safer to assume that it has left enough characteristic marks to make it identifyable. As we all know from watching police shows on the ZOG box, the barrel of a gun imparts unique markings to the surface of the bullet, which can be matched to specimens when viewed through a a stereo microscope. What perhaps we don't know is that the shell casing or cartridge also carries unique markings, from the impact of the bolt and ejection mechanisms. All automatic guns eject their cartridges but a cage or trap fitted around the eject port enables these to be caught. Every police force worldwide keeps a pictorial file of all bullets and weapons used previously (and most countries cooperate with each other) and should you be caught with a weapon of dubious ancestry, you could find yourself having a lot to explain.

When a gun is fired, particles of gas and powder will DEFINITELY lodge themselves in any exposed skin or clothing. These particles can be found by a forensic examiner by the taking of ether swabs. In the USA an aerosol has been developed that can be sprayed on the hands and will show up as a coloured dye immediately should it come into contact with these particles. It is used to eliminate suspects after (say) an assassination attempt. Use gloves!

Once a gun has been used it is courting disaster to keep it. It should be cleaned, dismatled and distrubuted into a deep lake, not forgetting that fingerprints can be preserved under water, especially if covered with a layer of gun oil.

In conclusion, firearms are an area in which forensics are advanced and extensive, thus giving the police the edge. Definately not an area to get involved in unless you know what you're doing.

VOICE IDENTIFICATION

It is possible from a tape recording of a voice to compare it with another voice, and decide whether they are one and the same. This is because each person's voice is a combination of frequencies which can be anylised using a sound spectrograph. This is most likely to be called into use for anonymous 'phone callings, and to this end it should be assumed that all telephone lines are not secure. Most newspapers have facilities for immediately recording calls, and all emergency service calls are automatically taped. Changing your voice, dialect, or pitch won't make a hell of a lot of difference to your 'voice print'. Speaking through a handkerchief has absolutely no effect! If you do have to use your voice over the 'phone, try everything from pinching your nose, stuffing your mouth with tissues and speaking with a Pakistani accent. Perhaps the best way to 'phone in a message is to edit on tape together the words of TV personalities, in the same way as ransom notes are made from cut up newspapers.....just imagine:-"This is Trevor McDonald claiming responsibility on behalf of C18...."

FACE IDENTIFICATION

We've all seen identikit pictures, and on the whole they just serve to give the roughest idea of someone's face. Obviously, certain things are of more help than others....scars, moles, broken noses, tattoos, etc. The latest development is from Sweden, where a computer takes a basic Identikit picture and blurs the edge over, finally producing a computer generated image similar to a photograph. The police also use professional artists to make sketches from a witness's description. It is hard to change the features on your face, but certain things help. Glasses, changes of hairstyle, haircolour, etc. Women can also use a mountain of make up, highten cheekbones, etc. Men can grow or shave facial hair. A man with a skinhead and a moustache looks radically different from the same man cleanshaven with long hair.

RESPONSIBILITY NOTES

These are a bit of an ego trip and just give the police more evidence to work on. In fact, it might be the only evidence the police will have, so why give it to them? However, if you do you have to send one, there are some things you should be aware of.

Your DNA and other details can be taken from the spit used to moisten the stamp and the envelope flap.(See 'DNA' and 'Body Secretion Traces'). Paper does carry fingerprints. When handwriting use stylised block capitals:

JUST LIKE THIS

Only ever write on one sheet of paper at a time, preferably on a flat, hard surface such as glass which will not take the impression of what you are writing. Don't use sheets torn from a notebook as the tear and type of notebook can be matched. Also something innocuos written in the notebook can be already transferred to the sheet you're using, prividing more comparisons. Use envelopes and paper from a very common brand and only write on one sheet at a time. Destroy any remaining sheets or envelopes. Don't keep any stamps from the same block. Don't post anything in your own area. Be aware that minute traces of hair and fibre can be easily trapped in the glue of the letter or stamp, especially if the letter has been in your pocket. This is even more likely if you have been cutting up newspaper words and sticking them down. When doing this, don't keep the glue, the scissors or the papers. Use 'Bic' ballpoint pens as these are the most common or use a felt pen, which is less likely to leave an impression on sheets below. See also 'Typewriter Traces'.

TYPEWRITER TRACES

Every typewriter carries its own unique identifying marks. These come from the keys themselves which show individual peculiarities of wear and style. Then there's the pressure that the keys have made on the paper and the alignment (or lack of it) of the letters. It is also possible to have an idea of the typist from the pressure emphasis of certain letters. E.g. 'hunt and peck' versus touch typing. To avoid all this, use a machine with a separate type element such as a daisy wheel. These can be bought from stationery shops for around a tenner and discarded after use. Better paying a tenner than spending ten years in jail. Even better, get on of those small stencils with a full alphabet and numerals from stationers (letter size approx 1/2 inch, cost: around £1). Discard after use. Computers could be better if it's not yours but bear in mind that every item of work done on a computer is saved somewhere in the memory and police forensics will find it so it's best not to use one. Computer printers also have their own unique way of printing. Use block capitals, preferably by using a stencil.

MAKING IMPRESSIONS VISIBLE AGAIN

It is sometimes believed that it is possible to remove identifying serial numbers by filing or drilling them off. The numbers stamped on the frames of cars, guns and other metal objects can be made visible again by various forensic processes. This is because the initial stamping has changed the structure of the metal beneath the surface. The best way to utilise this factor is by filing off the numbers and then banging the hell out of the area with a hammer and cold chisel, before re-stamping.

Many items are now marked by the owners with an ultra-violet pen that is invisible to the naked eye. Ultra violet bulbs can be bought from electrical shops and these will help you read any numbers or marks.

TRACES IN PRINTING

When writing 'subversive' pamphlets, books, stickers, etc. there are various processes which lend themself to forensic comparison. Most 'typesetting' is done by computers and as mentioned earlier, each computer printer has its own unique style of printing. The printer may print a letter 'S' in a way that can be comparible or the printer may leave tiny, invisible marks that can be identified when comparing them to the printed pages. People seem to think that if you clear the hard-drive of a computer then is is safe. This is bollocks and you should never really use your own computer for purposes deemed 'illegal' by the state, not unless you want to totally destroy your computer afterwards by tearing it apart and taking a sledgehammer to the hard-disk. Nowadays, computers are dropping in price every month really. You can probably pick a decent hard-drive from the small-ads of your local paper for about £200 if not less and a printer for an extra £50. These are small and pretty easy to hide in a friend's house (one who's not connected with your group/cell of course!) while you have a computer at home that you use for legal stuff only. When printing originals, etc. off always wear gloves, etc (as mentioned previously). Use the commonest brands of ink, paper, etc. so as to make comparisons useless. Distribution should be done very quickly, preferably with only yourself or with the smallest amount of people knowing about it as possible. Don't leave any stockpiles in embarrassing places. Remember, the police are trained to look in the places you think they won't and they'll take your house apart brick by brick if they think it will secure a conviction.

To avoid the labour of these above precautions, get comrades abroad to typeset, lay out and print your literature there if possible. This country's laws are probably one of the tightest in the world as far as material that can affect the status quo is concerned but there are countries that have virtually no laws regarding such subjects as race, guns, etc., that are only a boat ride or 'plane flight away. If it's a case of £500 travelling expenses or 5 years in the gulag, which would you prefer?

EYE SPY

We find video cameras everywhere these days; the underground, shopping centres, car parks, banks, football grounds, big houses, hospitals, as 'traffic control', etc, etc. These are all 'public' video cameras which do have some use, but we must also regard them as security measures. Mainly, these cameras are there to deter potential 'criminals' and instil a healthy sense of paranoia. 'This store is protected by video cameras - Big Brother is watching you'. These cameras are mainly preventative although they are more often being used evidentially. For example, a programme about surveillance cameras recently showed a couple of friends arguing in an empty car park. The argument became a fight and both received injuries before the police arrived after the CCTV control room had alerted them. Both men were then arrested for 'affray' and even though they said in court that it was a small argument that had now been sorted, both were convicted and jailed.

VIDEO AND THE POLICE

These days the police are attaching a great deal of importance to video, and have special video teams who, covertly, and openly monitor demo's, pickets, riots, gigs, etc. in order to provide concrete evidence of crimes being committed and to be able to identify individuals and the groups they are associated with. You can no longer go to a meeting, demo' or even a covert B+H gig really without a high chance of being recorded. This is done to identify regulars and 'ringleaders'. This information is shared by police forces worldwide. At certain events it is common for the police to pose as news teams and 'interview' those taking part. In our case though the surveillance is most likely covert with the police using long-range cameras or ones concealed in a parked van or building opposite.

VIDEO AND THE PRIVATE SECTOR

Because of the appallingly low clear up rate that the police have for crimes against property, rich people and companies are resorting to private security firms. This applies particularly to companies that suffer from expensive vandalism. For example, banks, vivisection labs, animal exporters and your local red bookshop.

To deal with this type of surveillance, the most important thing is to be unrecognisable. For the most part this means keeping masks and balaclavas handy, but in situations where this may look too suspicious, such as a march or a daylight activity. (for us as Nationalists, there's always the 'Public Order Act' that bans 'political uniforms' and the wearing of clothing that covers faces won't be tolerated by the police although watching news footage of events organised by reds, etc. this rule doesn't seem to apply!). Hats and glasses can be worn though but try to avoid wearing conspicuous clothing, as this makes you stick out.

It is possible to burn the cone of video cameras by simply pointing the flash gun of a camera directly into the lens, and giving them a burst, thus making them unusable. The best place to try this is at demo's with the cameras of the cops and the TV crews (for all practicable purposes, the two are indistinguishable). The same thing can be tried on private security cameras, really just for the harassment value but this will not always work as they often have anti-glare coatings on their lenses, or are keyed for night-time use, and in both cases will not register high levels of light. Many security cameras will work at night, either with the aid of floodlighting or with infra-red. You can be seen in pitch darkness.

CONCLUSION

Camera surveillance is now part of everyday life and because of their numbers we often simply fail to notice them. They are used and monitored by two separate groups. Firstly, the police and state security agencies, and secondly by the propertied classes, who are unhappy with the level of security that they are getting from their security guards (the police). Video cameras can be vandalised at every possible chance. Spray paint onto the lenses, stickers, glass etching fluid, a lump hammer, airguns with steel pellets, etc. Big Brother is watching you.

POLICE HELICOPTERS AND THEIR VIDEO CAPACITY

The Metropolitan police in London have at present two helicopters and will be getting more in the future with their technology will be improving. As it is, the helicopters carry radio receiving and transmission capabilities on microwave frequencies, video surveillance equipment, night searchlights, loud hailers and on board computer terminals. A new innovation are heat seeking image intensifiers that can detect body heat even when hidden. This can be used to detect fugitives in low populated areas.

They will be in constant contact with the ground and their response time is very fast, they can fly across London in 15 minutes. The pilots are police officers and not privately hired (flying pigs?). The video camera is mounted on the side of the fuselage and can be pointed in any direction and can be focused to record a face in a crowd. The picture is monitored on board but using microwave transmission it can also be monitored from vans or a command centre at New Scotland Yard. This system is called 'Hele-Tele' and in practice it means that an individual in a crowd can be isolated, identified, and police on the ground can be redirected to him by radio, even when he is only visible from the air. At night, the camera is complimented by a very powerful directional searchlight, although it can use existing light, or work on infra-red frequencies, but with a distinct loss of quality. This has been used in Ulster for spotting night time movements, especially on the border. In places where there is a large amount of residual heat, such as in built-up areas, image intensifies lose much of their effectiveness.

The on board computer carried is a terminal, which means they have all the information on the PNC to work with. This makes it autonomous. In practice, they can spot a car from the air, zoom in on its plates, then find out the name, address of the owner/previous owners, criminal record of the owner/previous owners, in fact all information available on the PNC.

The heat sensitive equipment carried is very sensitive and they don't really like rockets and distress flares being fired at them, so this is all that could be used to annoy them, short of building a microwave radio jammer, or firing a SAM missile at them.

MISCELLANEOUS

JOURNALISTS

Journalists often try to give the impression that they are sympathetic to certain causes but never trust a reporter as far as you can throw 'em. They'd sell their Grandma for a story and are only interested in the 'scandal' side of the story and anything they write will be in line with the editorial policy of the rag they work for. They will lie through their teeth to get you to talk to 'em. Tell these bastards to fuck off unless they want their next meal to be their teeth. These people are scum and will distort everything you say and they will be only to happy to finger you to Special Branch or the police who regularly drop in at their offices. All that stuff about 'protecting their sources' is a load of bollocks, they'll usually come up with what the police want to hear, they'd be taken to court if they didn't. These people are lying scum, only interested in how big their pay cheques are gonna be at the end of the month and your only contact with them is that of your boot in their mouths.

COP CARS AND HOW TO SPOT THEM

Most cop cars have orange stripes around the sides and revolving blue lights on the top, which sort of gives the game away. That's if you've been for a drink on New Year's Eve and the taxis are charging twice as much so you've taken the car. If you're a known supporter of a revolutionary group, the pig car that's following you will be a clapped out old wreck that'll make you think your banger is a lot better. You can't really spot them by the appearance of the occupants. Plain clothes police, especially SB don't have those regulation police haircuts, they just look like any other person in the street. Probably the only way you'll know if you're under surveillance by the police is if you familiarise yourself with these cars. Nip down to your local station and have a look at the cars parked there. After a while you begin to 'sense' them and spot them a mile off. The cars come mainly in 'neutral' colours, mainly dull brown, green, etc. More vivid colours do occur but less frequently as these do catch people's attention. Another giveaway could be the build of the people in the car, such as people obviously take part in weight training, etc. If there are more in the back, for some unknown reason one of them will have his arms stretched out for some across the seat. Something to do with rank perhaps, I don't know....

The real giveaway, however is the number plates. A car's registration will tell you where it was registered. The letters that indicate this are the last two of the group of three. London, police cars are registered in West Central London and are given the codes UL, UV, UW and UU. So the registrations K378 PUV, L778 RUW G891 TUU can all be police plates. For other parts of the country, the location codes are given in the back of the AA Member's Handbook, or in the back of the Investigative Reporter's Handbook by Stuart Christie.

HOW TO SPOT A PLAINCLOTHES COP

As mentioned previously, the only time we have any real dealings with the cops, they're usually in plainclothes and not all that easy to spot unless they've just kicked your front door in. But it does become easier to recognise them after you've seen a few. Once again, it's worth going down to your local nick and have a look at the way they dress. Even though their hair might not be regulation length and they've not had a shave for a couple of days, they like to follow fashion so they like wearing stuff like Fred Perry, Gallini, La Coste tops, etc. They wear decent jeans and slacks and like leather jackets and expensive wristwatches, Nike or Adidas trainers for pursuit. But then there's Special Branch, the political police. They're usually White, aged in their thirties and are specially trained in infiltrating the fringes of demonstrations. For this purpose they probably try to dress in a similar way to the people they are trying to get in with, maybe by having a short haircut and wearing a pair of Doc's, jeans and just go to a pub where they know there's a gig or meeting on. Maybe they'd just observe people coming to the activity - how many, what sort of people they are, any literature going around from groups such as C18, UDA, etc. If some people sit near him, he might start up a conversation with them, etc. We all know the routine and they are pretty easy to spot, especially if they start buying people drinks. Rule is, don't start talking with anyone you don't really know at activities. We should all know this by now anyway. Just keep your gob shut in the presence of strangers.

DEMO'S, PICKETS, RIOTS, ETC.

Since the 1997 Public Order act came into effect, and even more so with the Criminal Justice Act, all public demonstrations, etc. have come under stricter control. As far as we are concerned, marches and public meetings are a thing of the past in inner city areas. They'll be able to find some law to stop us even selling perfectly legal literature publicly, as they've done at Brick Lane since 1993. At every meeting that's advertised to paid up members of a 'respectable' Nationalist group, there's a SB officer or his CID equivalent taking notes and making a report, picking out 'ringleaders', etc. Information gathering is all important. Photographers and video crews will be waiting outside to take pictures of everyone attending, in the hope of convicting them or identifying them later. After a riot, there will be all the usual shower of 'community leaders' and 'community policemen' sifting through all the available photo's and film footage. TV companies and papers willingly supply all photo's and footage to the police and if they don't they are made to give them up through the courts. During the Miner's strike of 1984/85 and the police attacks on striking miners, anyone found with a camera had it stolen or smashed up, video crews were kept well back and journalists were beaten up and had their notes destroyed. As a result, it was impossible of getting any decent footage of these vicious assaults on perfectly legal pickets and their supporters.

Although cameras are useful for recording arrests, they can also help to convict. As far as I can see, there is no reason at all for a person to go to a gig or a meeting with a camera. Where does Gable get all his pictures of our gigs from? In a riot situation people seem to think that wearing a camera makes them a non-combatant. Perhaps everyone could leave their cameras at home.....at least then we'd know who were the cops.

RAIDS

When the police or the Special Branch raid, it is very often a 'fishing trip'. They will painstakingly sift through your letters, address books, mailing lists, 'phone books, photo' albums, etc. and copy and cross reference them. They will try to establish 'friendship networks'....who knows who. It's best to keep such material hidden somewhere safe and imaginative. Don't keep things like weapons, false I.D.s, etc. stashed. Basically, nearly every home in the country has something illegal in it, whether its a nicked library book or a fiddled meter, or in our case some stickers you've had for years might just offend their 'race laws'. It would be silly to get nicked for something this small, as it gives them some leverage against you. If you are raided, try to keep your eyes on the police at all times, and thoroughly search everywhere after they've gone, or after you get home if they take you as well, for bugs, or drugs they've planted as an excuse to come back and nick you. Tell any friends who are in your address/phone book in case they get a visit as well. Stay calm and don't let them intimidate you. Tell them they're in the wrong, be up in arms about the invasion of privacy.....after all, every Englishman's home is his castle!

TELEPHONES

Telephones are poison. From the very onset, it is wisest to assume that everything said on a telephone is totally public, and everything can be heard. Britain has one of the most advanced telephone systems in the world. Every call is recorded; date, time, duration, recipient, town, country, cost, etc. They send you an itemised bill - the police can easily get a list of people who ring you. Telephone systems can be made to automatically monitor conversations and begin recording should key words enter the conversation. (Such as bomb, combat, eighteen, etc.). This has been used for quite a while now in Ulster.

It is already possible to tap any 'phone in Britain from one command centre. If your phone is tapped, it is unlikely that you will notice anything out of the ordinary, although it has been known for people to pick up the receiver and hear their previous conversation being played back to them! A comrade of mine got a crossed line with an internal telephone call at the local police station!! More likely you'll have a clearer line than usual, as this is in the bugger's interest. Telephones are tapped at the exchange or from a command centre, so you are highly unlikely to find a little transmitter in the set itself. If this happens, it's more likely that you are a victim of industrial espionage.

One of the ways to check if you are being bugged is to arrange a fake action over the 'phone, and see how many coppers turn up! Another way to have fun is to ring up a friend and at a prearranged signal you both reduce your voices to a whisper. If a bugger is listening in, hopefully they'll turn up their headphones to hear better. Your friend gets off the line and you blow a referee's whistle as hard as you can down the 'phone. This should shatter the bastard's eardrums although it might not make you too popular! This is not usually going to work, as most calls are taped automatically. Still it's worth it for the nuisance value.

The circuit of your 'phone can be left open, and whilst it will still work properly, the mouthpiece turns into a microphone and can be used to record anything that is said in the room. For this reason it's best to keep your 'phone in a drawer, or next to a playing radio.

Telephones are also used to establish circles of contact between people, who knows who, etc.

Once again, telephones can never be secure. If possible, stay away from them, but if you have to use them, take care.

ARE YOU BEING FOLLOWED?

When the police follow you on foot, they operate in teams of three or over, all in radio contact, and co-ordinated from a station or a car. They can be very hard to spot, because if one of them thinks that you have seen him/her they will drop behind and let another take over. Always when being followed, the way to flush a tail is to do something illogical, such as jump on a bus and then jump off immediately. Who follows you? Go up an up escalator, then come down again. Take a lift up and down. Cross a road twice. Take a route on the tube that is more complicated than necessary. Change lines too often. There is no reason for anyone else to do these things unless they are following you. You could have a friend follow you at a distance over a prearranged route to see if they can see anyone else following. Geddit? To lose a tail, head for very crowded areas, such as the underground, shopping centres, high streets, department stores, etc. and try and slip in and out of crowds and exits.

In a car the same thing applies. Car tails are often done in a 'box', whereby three or four cars will follow ahead, behind and parallel to you, so that you may not see them, they will always be where you want to go. Going round a roundabout more than once or taking four consecutive left or right turns is the classic method of telling if you are being tailed. Whether on foot or in a car the ideal situation is to get to somewhere isolated so that anyone tailing you will stick out like a sore thumb. Long, empty roads or areas of park land for instance.

BLEND IN AND GET AWAY

It's a good idea to listen to police radio transmissions and get used to the way they operate. Most importantly, how they look for someone, and how they phase descriptions. If you're running away and they're after you, your description will be put over the radio to cars and foot patrols. Firstly, you will be an 'IC' number, which denotes your racial category. Then your approximate height, age, hair colour and clothes will be given, and anything you may be carrying. Obviously, the police are alert to anyone running or appearing in a hurry or nervous. If possible, RELAX and try to make your way towards other people. You're safest in a crowd. Try to appear as if you're going about legitimate business. A suit, tie or smart clothes/haircut, etc. works wonders. After daylight you can pin the collar of a dark suit up around your neck and you will be converted by the night. If anyone comes along, simply let your collar down to reveal a white shirt and tie. It's amazing what a suit will let you get away with. You can carry a briefcase or a clipboard. You have to appear to belong in the area where you are. A skinhead in a business suit in the slums is obviously conspicuous. Working clothes e.g. donkey jacket, overalls, etc. give you an air of legitimacy. A white coat could make you a lab technician/butcher/baker, etc. These clothes or overalls can be taken off and discarded to immediately change your appearance. It is important to be able to change your outward look in a short time or to be indistinguishable from people around you. To help change how about a reversible jacket? A hat pulled out of a pocket. What you've been wearing under your overalls. The intention is to look inconspicuous (i.e. drab). Dark trousers or blue jeans are the most common. A dark, neutral top; brown, black, navy, grey. Bright colours make you stand out. A radio description of you will mention these. Not many people wear short cut jeans or braces that are hanging down, for example. Try and see what makes people stick out in a crowd, and see if you can copy the people who blend in.

When trying to get away from a situation, it is always imperative to know the area beforehand. Where are the nearest tube entrances, shopping centres, places you can get lost in the sea of people. Which roads can you go down? Any dead ends? How will you get away? A motorbike can get through traffic like a knife through butter. A bicycle can go places where even a police car can't go, over railway bridges, down a tube station, subways, over parks, etc. and they're very quiet! Pick what is best for the situation.

WHAT TO DO WHEN ARRESTED

Everyone has their pet theory about this. Some think it's best to make a fuss and demand your rights, etc. whilst others think you should keep your mouth shut the whole time. Obviously a lot depends on the coppers and the charge, but I think the best thing is to keep as quiet as possible. It's easy to give advice, but it can be very frightening in a station, especially if it's your first time in one, but everyone acts differently. If you're middle class and your dad's a lawyer, then you can kick up a fuss as much as you like and the police will treat you differently. They know who to keep the right side of. But this situation will only apply to the wankers who infest groups like the SWP, etc. and as all our people are working class and conform to most of the police's prejudices, the story will be different. You will get short shrift. You will be what the police call a 'slag', that is, someone they consider beneath themselves.

Most crimes are solved by 'confessions' so the Golden rule is never make a statement, and especially never sign a statement. Without a signature it can be disputed in court, with a signature, you're fucked. If you do sign a statement, remember to sign and number every page, and right up to where the writing ends, so that nothing can be added or slipped in. If more than one of you has been arrested, then you will be played off against the other....."Fred's confessed to everything". To avoid this sort of crap, you all have to agree to say absolutely nothing. Cops are experienced interrogators and they can spot inaccuracies and conflicting statements a mile off, so there really is no point in concocting elaborate alibis and excuses, as eventually you are bound to slip up, and once they know that you've lied once they'll never give up. I personally think the best way to behave is to play the role they expect of you. Be slightly in awe of them, willing, polite, and slightly stupid. I think that kicking up a fuss and demanding your rights will only get you in the shit....no one likes a smartarse. If you do want to know your rights, contact the N.C.C.L. who will provide you with all the information you need.

It's useful to know that sort of stuff. I've had some success by pretending to be slightly mentally below average (pretending!). Just let your mouth hang open and appear to be very dense, one can short of a six pack. The cops just assume you're thick and don't push you as hard as they might, as they don't expect to get much sense out of you anyway. Also they don't like soiling their hands on loonies.....they find it demeaning, perhaps. Who knows? Give it a try sometime.

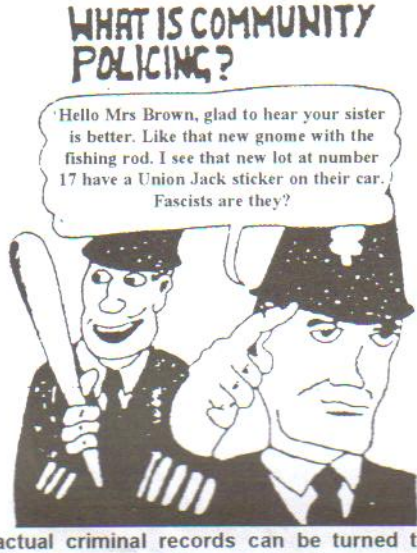
What can I say? Obviously the best thing is not to say anything at all whilst in custody, although if you refuse to give your name and address, fingerprints, etc., you could end up being remanded. I don't know the law on DNA but it's probably the same as fingerprints: They'll just lock you up until they've got a court order making you comply. Ask others who've been arrested before and see what works for them. I can't see anyone saying do anything except keep you mouth shut - don't make a statement! Don't think you won't have to worry about it - you will!

WHO'S WATCHING WHO?

Just because you're paranoid doesn't mean that they're not watching you, and while there's no point walking around with your head over your shoulder all the time, it's worth knowing who's likely to be watching you, for what reasons and when.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE

On a neighbourhood level, information is gathered in many ways, some of them seemingly quite innocent, yet it's intelligence gathering non the less. It is obtained by police on patrol, by undercover squads operating in secret, by talking to shopkeepers and garage proprietors, from the public via neighbourhood watch schemes and by formal meetings with other officials who possess information. Much police intelligence can be gathered from their own records,



WHAT IS COMMUNITY POLICING?
'Hello Mrs Brown, glad to hear your sister is better. Like that new gnome with the fishing rod. I see that new lot at number 17 have a Union Jack sticker on their car. Fascists are they?

and even factual criminal records can be turned to intelligence purposes. This is even more the case in crime reports, which contain many details of persons who become involved, either as witnesses or victims in the criminal process.

The neighbourhood community copper does most of the 'spade work', gathering gossip and slander, and making prejudicial judgements of their own. This cartoon just about sums it up. All local information is relayed back to the station where it is processed. Many forces now have their own computor, independent of the PNC, where all local intelligence is stored. However, the local system and the PNC 'talk' to each other and exchange information.

We should also be aware of the type of people who are likely to provide intelligence to the state at a local level. No matter what the organisation (local police/CID/Branch/MI5), information is gathered by bribery, intimidation, the 'recruitment' of civilians as spies/neighbours, the local grocer, the milkman, postman, local clergy, access to local government files-taxation, social welfare, vehicle licensing, local housing dept. files, observations by electricity and gas meter readers, etc. In short, the recruitment of everyone and anyone who is willing to assist the secret police. School teachers are a particularly attractive proposition in this respect. The types of homework essays set for kids can be particularly revealing; 'A Day and Night in the Life of my Family', 'Our Family's Best Friends', 'My Family's Likes and Dislikes'. Essays on these subjects can all be quite entertaining, or not quite so, depending on your perspective, motives and objectives. Is this an exaggeration? Think about it.....would you trust your ex-Headmaster? Also, remarks your kids make in class, especially on the subject of race, etc. These will all be noted and the police will have access to all files at the school. Why do people grass each other up you may wonder? Usually out of 'public spiritedness', or just because they're impressed by a badge.

SPECIAL BRANCH

Special Branch is the executive wing of MI5, or if you prefer, Britain's secret police. Normally they are accountable to the CID, but operationally they report to MI5 and the home office. Their headquarters are at New Scotland Yard. Almost every police force has SB officers attached to it. Their main job is gathering intelligence for MI5, that is things that concern 'internal security'. They have total access to all information gathered locally by the police and any that they concentrate on themselves. They use the PNC to a far greater degree than the police.

The branch have various methods of collecting information and various sources. Surprisingly perhaps, 75% of information is given away free. Here are a few examples;

1) All the names and addresses of political activists who appear in the press, national and local, are noted and indexed. Extra prints of demo's, etc. can be acquired from the papers, for background research, and journalists will be asked to supply additional information, such as the names and addresses of people who write letters about such forbidden subjects as race, etc. to the paper.

2) All those signing petitions to Parliament, even in the most innocuous cases.

3) Letters coming to the branch from members of the public, giving details about their neighbours, or pictures of political activities naming someone they know.

4) The papers, magazines, pamphlets, etc. of political groups. Where possible they subscribe via a box number. Newspapers from Nationalist groups containing pictures of activists selling papers, etc. are a big favourite.

5) During raids by both the branch and the police, the contents of address books, letters, photo' albums, cheque stubs, etc. are all noted down and cross indexed to determine 'friendship networks'.

6) Telephone tapping and mail surveillance. All mail can be read without you noticing it's been tampered with.

7) Trials of members of political groups are watched for those who attend and help the defence. Branch officers are at all entrances to the court, and photo's are taken covertly, either from a van or window opposite the court.

8) Approaches for information are made to employers and state officials of all types, like DSS personnel, doctors, teachers, postmen, etc.

9) A report on every meeting and demo. of any Nationalist group is prepared by the branch or the CID/police in attendance. The contents of speeches are noted, 'ringleaders' are identified. Photo's are taken, as well as video film.

10) Grasses, touts, informants. There are five main kinds. i) The 'innocent' informer who tells a branch officer what he considers to be 'common knowledge' about colleagues in the movement, etc. Also in this category are the reactionaries who grass up those they consider to be a threat to society, or when they might profit by the downfall of the victim. Both these types are unpaid and act out of a sense of public spiritedness, or because they've been watching too much of 'The Bill' on the ZOG box. ii) The 'innocent' revolutionary who also tells 'what everyone knows'. Branch officers are usually ill informed and giving them any information at all is stupid. iii) Paid informers. Comparitively rare, but someone sympathetic to the branch who is paid in cash for information. iv) 'Paid in kind' informers. More common these are people over whom the branch have some hold (threat to prosecute, embarrassing information, etc.) and are forced to give out details. v) Undercover branch officers. There are not many of these and they tend to infiltrate organisations and campaigns which are new or loosely bound and the participants are less likely to know each other.

The SB keep a close eye on the 'right-wing' in Britain but their job is not made easy by the abundance of factions and splinters. More and more members of these groups are ignoring the 'democratic road to Nationalism' and advocating direct action (how shocking!). The disadvantage that this poses the branch is that whilst openly legal, democratic groups are easy to watch (fill in a coupon, send £20 and you're a member) and categorise, groups without leaders and no central command structure or organisation are much harder to keep track of.

Knowledge is power, and it is the job of the branch to collect, and by its storage and use, prevent the likelihood of revolution or political change. Information is collected on anyone who is racialist, a football hooligan, etc. or likely to become either of these. The branch were originally called the 'Special Irish Branch', formed to combat Fenian terrorism before Ireland gained independence. It still has a passion for happenings in Ulster where its interest is in both Republican and Loyalist paramilitaries. This is yet another concern for the branch; most White Nationalists are supporters, even members of Loyalist paramilitary groups, and the branch takes a great interest in this. Get the picture? The moral is: if you stick your head up, they'll make a note of it, should they ever had to chop it off. We have to perfect ways of doing what we want without being too conspicuous.

MI5

MI5 is the domestic intelligence service responsible for intelligence, counter-espionage and security within the UK. Its main task is the monitoring of subversive groups and individuals who might pose a threat to national security. It also monitors the activities of foreign nationals/agents and of diplomatic staff in Britain. In practice, any group whether open or covert, must of necessity come to the attention of MI5.

MI5 is officially known as the Security Service and has 9 branches; Counter-Espionage, Protective Security (someone's house in Harlow?), Counter-Sabotage, Counter-Subversion, Intelligence and Operations, Scientific and Support Services, Computer Division, Training and Registry, Administration and Finance. All these branches are divided into sub-sections, all of which have a specific job to do. i.e. F branch deals with groups such as C18, the BNP, red groups, anarchists, etc. A branch deals with criminals such as thieves, etc., K branch studies foreign powers. A recent revelation that should concern all racial Nationalists is the fact that Andrew Carmichael, a leading light of the 'National Democrats', has recently admitted to being an agent for MI5. If MI5 monitor reactionary Tory splinter groups like the NDP, what are they doing with us?

THE POLICE NATIONAL COMPUTER

The Police National Computer (PNC) has been operational since 1986. It supplies details of car owners, disqualified drivers, etc. as well as people with criminal records, those due to appear in court and people wanted for questioning. Nearly a hundred million entries now exist on the PNC.

During a name check, the PNC cross indexes your name between 8 different indexes. Not everyone is listed on the PNC, so if you were stopped and checked, in the street, say, then you could get away with a false name and d.o.b. If your name is not in the PNC, it would come back 'no trace', but if the police were being funny, they could search you and if you did have ID on you with your real name on, they'd probably do you for wasting police time or something. Always use an uncommon name as if you use one there's probably loads of entries for, like Peter Smith, they'll ask you more questions. Britain is the only country in Europe where you don't have to carry an ID card, although the way things are going in 'the home of democracy' it won't be long before we do. Giving a false name is not an offence, as long as the name you give is one 'by which you are not known'. This means that it is unusual in practice for anyone to be charged with using an alias.

After reading this article, hopefully you'll have a better idea of how ZOG works and is trying to destroy us. Primarily, the main thing to remember is, when interviewed:

NO COMMENT!!

WHAT IS CO-INTEL-PRO?

During the 1960's, J. Edgar Hoover launched his phoney war on Communism, in defence of "Democracy and the American Way". As the Vietnam conflict raged and racial strife was threatening to engulf the good old US of A, people were being whipped up into a frenzy against suspected "reds under the beds". Also, on the other side, Marxists, beatniks and Blacks were being whipped up by "agitators" in supposed anti-war and civil rights groups. It is estimated that about 90% of all these Communist and anti-Communist groups were under the control of the Government, either being directly set up by the state or controlled by 'agent provocateurs'. It was this atmosphere that enabled Hoover to violate people's rights unhindered. In fact, his slick spying organisation, the FBI, forced 'phone companies to build in facilities that could bug about 8-10% of a city's 'phones at any one time, always in the guise of fighting those "God damn Commies". The civil unrest let the FBI become the biggest internal spying organisation in the world, and all on it's own citizens. And all in the name of freedom, yeah right?

It makes me laugh when I hear "right-wingers" praise his fight against the reds, they seem to forget that he wreaked havoc on the Klan, almost ripping the organisation apart. It's the same old script, the occupational Governments use the so-called reds to cause trouble, then with public approval to deal with the reds and anarchists, they set about dealing with US.

It was in this era that the FBI developed special programmes to deal with and destroy subversive groups. This is how their Counter Intelligence Program or Co-Intel-Pro was developed. This programme proved to be effective and was successful in destroying the "Black Panthers", reducing the group's capability to zero. I can hear you all out there saying good but the sting in the tail is that once perfected by the FBI, it was passed to all the other secret services around the world and it became the blueprint for the security services the world over to destroy or to try and destroy all anti-Government groups, and that means us!

Going back to the Black Panthers, unlike most of the other so-called revolutionary groups which were controlled by wishy washy reds or Uncle Toms and posed little threat to the Government's status quo, certain sections of the Black Panthers, like 'em or loathe 'em (and we loathe 'em), went out and did what previous groups and leaders had only talked about. The more these Blacks got out of their prams, the more support they got from the Black community. Their popularity snowballed and chapters sprung up in almost every state in America. Armed confrontations with the government were commonplace and Hoover declared them public enemy No.1. The full force of Co-Intel-Pro was tested on them and proved to be decisive in their destruction.

Co-Intel-Pro needed infiltraitors or plants in the movement to carry out the operation. These would be recruited either by being offered money or offered deals after being arrested. According to files released, most informers or plants were recruited after drugs busts. As you know, people on or involved in drugs tend to be untrustworthy and easy to turn, especially those involved in the heroin trade which exploded in the ghettos of America during the Vietnam war. It was these sort of people that were targeted, the users would sell their grandmothers, and the dealers would face either big jail sentences or work for the Government. Some obviously took the easy option and betrayed their cause. Once these plants were recruited the were used to implement:

(1) The first phase of Co-Intel-Pro which was centrally co-ordinated disinformation.

Damaging rumours were circulated amongst the Panthers and to their supporters. These rumours caused splits amongst the Panthers and turned other groups against them and vice-versa.

(2) Phase two was the character assassinations of members, usually those who were considered dangerous by the Government either by their willingness to overstep the government's line or those who influenced others or who showed independence.

(3) Phase three were the agent provocateur actions. These led to numerous set-ups and arrests of Panther members, disabling whole chapters. Agent provocateurs would not actually involve themselves but incite others to carry out illegal acts. Panthers were arrested in armed robberies or pushed into actions that would end up causing maximum disruption to the group with maximum repercussions.

(4) Phase four - MURDER - was put into action if the other phases hadn't already destroyed the groups with murder being the last resort. This was done either by agents inciting other members to murder one another or by the police as what happened when the police stormed their headquarters and murdered them. Murder is the last resort and only used when the Government feels that it is losing control. When members of a group are murdered it destroys morale and disheartens members to the point of them dropping out. Only the most dedicated are strong enough to carry on. These are the four main phases of the programme. The Government encourages drug use via their agents, the devastating effects are well known and as you know drags any group into the gutter. It affects behaviour and basically undermines everything and totally destroys the cohesion of the group.

After being subjected to Co-Intel-Pro, the Panthers were seriously wounded. The operation against the Panthers ended in 1971, it was given the go-ahead by Hoover and President Nixon. The legacy of Hoover still lives on in America and the FBI is at the forefront of the battle against pro-White, anti-Government groups. As for Co-Intel-Pro, it is still used by all the top secret services from Britain's Special Branch to Mossad and it remains the main way that those agencies combat anti-Government groups.

AND NO-ONE IS MORE ANTI-GOVERNMENT THAN US. BE WARNED!

RAHOWA!

Brothers and Sisters!

It's high time that together we start to make our dreams of a liberated Aryan Nation come true. Zionism has for years had control over our Government, our schools, media and businesses - everything our forefathers built up, these parasites now thrive on, sucking the lifeblood out of our Aryan people. Zionism has crept into every White home like a plague and the Zionists, like infected rats, spread their disease. They are gnawing away at our homes and soon, only the foundations will be left of what our ancestors created through blood, sweat and toil.

It's time we all seriously thought about what we can do to change this situation, which is a result of the laziness and cowardice of our people, being afraid of losing their comfortable livelihoods consisting of beer-drinking, fashion hysteria and skinhead anarchism! Not everyone can take an active part in the struggle, but everyone can do something to assist the warriors. Ian Stuart's great lyrics are not only meant for passive listening. They are meant as inspiration in a life of activism. That is what Blood & Honour is all about! Adolf Hitler wrote it in Mein Kampf: "This is not an ideology of words and talk!" No, it is the ideology of the flaming sword!

All who honestly call themselves National Socialists should heed these words and live by them!!!

The only solution and our race's last hope is that we TODAY (not tomorrow) take up that sword and start fighting. If, instead, we carry on babbling, too lazy to do anything, we must all accept the label "criminal traitor", because the battle between evil and good started a long, long time ago and as a POW I still think I could have done a lot more for the cause. How can you as "Nationalist Warriors" live with yourselves wasting £40 on one night's beer drinking while the POWs have to live on £3 per week? How can you call yourselves NS and proudly wear slogans like "My Honour is Loyalty!" and "Blood and Honour"? "Tomorrow is always too late, so get out there and do something!" so Ian Stuart sings in one of his brilliant songs. This is just what today's situation is all about. It's high time people got up and started doing something for our race. And by this I don't mean just demonstrating or beating up some lone immigrant while being drunk. No, through armed and disciplined combat units in the way that was shown to us by comrades like David Lane. We must fight the Zionist beast! This is what National Socialism is about today!

If you don't agree, you are yourself part of the problem. Those who are not with us are against us and shall be treated accordingly.

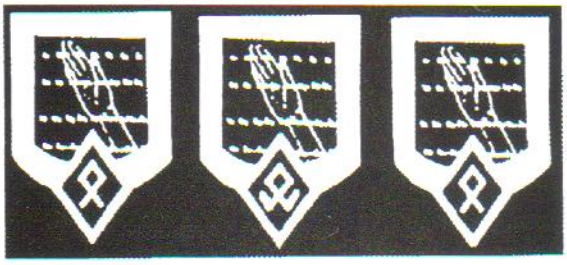
BLOOD & HONOUR is our battle cry, and even our future, because surely it will be a bloody battle where only men and women of honour are needed.

Hail C18, Hail B&H and hail all comrades who have stood up and fought back, and therefore are either martyrs or prisoners of war.

88/A.B.!

Niclas Lofdahl, POW

THE ARYAN BROTHERHOOD (ARISKA BRODRASKAPET)

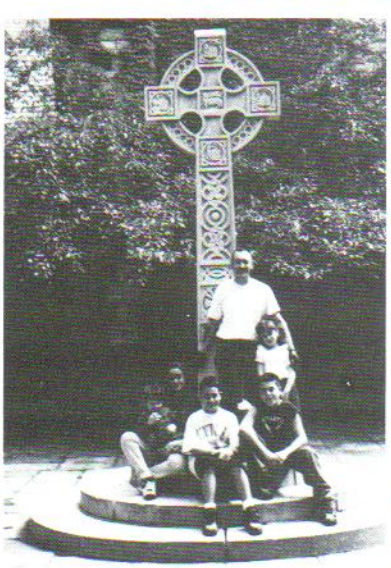


The Aryan Brotherhood is an organisation of NS activists presently serving time in ZOG's dungeons. Among other activities, they have produced three issues of their own newspaper. Unfortunately, two have been out of print for some time, but thanks to Blood & Honour Scandinavia, they are once again in circulation. All money coming in from the sale of these papers goes directly to the POWs. These highly radical magazines cost only SEK20:- each (send a £5 cash donation to the AB and you will receive copies). They can be ordered from: AB, PO BOX 3101, S-200 22 MALMO, SWEDEN.

Warning - There is nothing in these mags for 'revolutionary' pretenders who get nervous fits when confronted with organisations like C18 and THE ORDER....!

Comrade Nikki has since been arrested by Sweden's Occupational Government accused of being part of a C18 cell that sent packages containing dynamite to the Swedish Justice Minister and PAJEN of 'Nerdland', the ZOG front group. Comrade Nikki was arrested whilst on home leave from a previous jail sentence. He has proved himself to be a true revolutionary and looks set to spend a lot more time in ZOG's dungeons before he is free. Not only has Nikki a good understanding of our race's present dilemma, he has what it takes to put things right, as you can see by his above article. He is a man who is not afraid to put his words into action, a real warrior, a real comrade!

C18 SALUTE HIM!!



The White Race has a great future ahead of it....

IF YOU'VE GOT THE GUTS TO FIGHT FOR IT!

ARM THE LOYALISTS NOW!

You cannot have failed to notice all the fuss recently when the MP, Alan Clark, came up with a solution to deal with the IRA: "Shoot 600 of 'em in one night". For fuck's sake, the people of Ulster have been begging successive 'British' Governments to do just that for the last 25 fucking years. But all they've done is bow down and arse lick Gerry Adams and co. You'll have to agree that the position of the Loyalist community is now dramatically weaker than it was at the beginning of the '70s. Once staunch Loyalist areas are now hot beds of Republicanism: whole areas have been handed over to the Provo' scum. Just how far is this treacherous Government willing to bend? We'll tell you: ALL THE WAY! That's right! This Government can't wait till the day it can wash its hands of some of this country's most loyal citizens. If things carry on the way the Government plans, then it is only a matter of time until they can get away with it.

At the moment, the will and resistance of the Ulster people prevents an all out surrender to the IRA by this Government and that is why its programme to "break up" the Loyalist community is being stepped up. Every year, more Loyalist marches are being forced to re-route or be called off altogether as the Government bows down to Provo' agitators who whip up the Republican community into a frenzy every marching season. Where will it end? No marches, no Union Flags, no bonfires, no murals, no loyalist estates; if the Loyalist population is ever outnumbered by the republicans, will there be anyone protecting their minority rights? Will there fuck! As for the troubles they will never stop until the IRA is: 1) Destroyed or 2) They get what they want. There are ONLY 2 endings and because the un-British Government has given in time after time, it's a case of "give 'em an inch and they'll take a mile" which is exactly what the Republicans are doing. Each and every time the Government backs down on something, the Republicans quieten down for a couple of months, then they start agitating for more concessions. They are always backed up by some loudmouthed Yankee politician who's great grandad was a Paddy, or the media who bombard us with romantic crap about the IRA. Film after film is released portraying them as freedom fighters whilst the Loyalist paramilitaries are usually portrayed as sicko madmen. The fact is there are a lot of brave men who have given up their lives fighting the IRA, or are stuck in the fucking Maze prison. These men actually put themselves on the line for their beliefs and deserve respect. It's a shame our politicians don't have the same bottle.

IF THE IRA ARE SO FUCKING BRAVE, LET'S ARM THE LOYALISTS, PULL OUT THE TROOPS AND IF THE PROVO'S THINK THEY CAN TAKE ULSTER, LET 'EM TRY!
